English as a Second Language in the Mainstream Constant Leung, Christine Davison, Bernard Mohan, 2014-07-15 Since it was first established in the 1970 s the Applied Linguistics and Language Study series has become a major force in the study of practical problems in human communication and language education Drawing extensively on empirical research and theoretical work in linguistics sociology psychology and education the series explores key issues in language acquisition and language use English as a Second Language learners are now a considerable and increasing part of the mainstream of urban schools in English speaking countries Beyond the learning of English this development raises broader questions of language as a medium of education in a multilingual multicultural environment Drawing on their experience as researchers and educators in Australia Canada and England the authors of English as a Second Language in the Mainstream present an up to date account of advances in theory and practice Their analysis of system wide provision however suggests that a truly responsive educational vision is lacking government policy is inadequate educational practices for ESL students are either underdeveloped or poorly coordinated with practices for other students and the rhetoric of reform fails to engage significantly with issues of teaching and resources The authors argue towards a more comprehensive vision which can acknowledge the relation between issues concerning ESL students and issues concerning the educational system as a whole which can coordinate reforms in ESL education with general reforms which can explicitly and systematically integrate language learning and content learning and which can build more positively on the multilingual and multicultural nature of modern education for all students

Empirical data driven neural network based probabilistic and statistical methods seem to be the modern trend Recently OpenAI s ChatGPT Google s Bard and Microsoft s Sydney chatbots have been garnering a lot of attention for their detailed answers across many knowledge domains In consequence most AI researchers are no longer interested in trying to understand what common intelligence is or how intelligent agents construct scenarios to solve various problems Instead they now develop systems that extract solutions from massive databases used as cheat sheets In the same manner Natural Language Processing NLP software that uses training corpora associated with empirical methods are trendy as most researchers in NLP today use large training corpora always to the detriment of the development of formalized dictionaries and grammars Not questioning the intrinsic value of many software applications based on empirical methods this volume aims at rehabilitating the linguistic approach to NLP In an introduction the editor uncovers several limitations and flaws of using training corpora to develop NLP applications even the simplest ones such as automatic taggers The first part of the volume is dedicated to showing how carefully handcrafted linguistic resources could be successfully used to enhance current NLP software applications The second part presents two representative cases where data driven approaches cannot be implemented simply because there is not enough data available for low resource languages The third part addresses the problem of how to treat multiword units in NLP software which is arguably the weakest point of NLP applications today but has a simple and elegant linguistic solution It is the editor s belief that readers interested in Natural Language Processing will appreciate the importance of this volume both for its questioning of the training corpus based approaches and for the intrinsic value of the linguistic formalization and the underlying methodology presented Stuttering Ehud Yairi,Carol H.
