

Chapter 06: Childhood Communicable and Infectious Diseases

MULTIPLE CHOICE

1. Pertussis vaccination should begin at which age?

- a. Birth
- b. 2 months
- c. 6 months
- d. 12 months

ANS: B

The acellular pertussis vaccine is recommended by the American Academy of Pediatrics beginning at age 6 weeks. Infants are at greater risk for complications of pertussis. The vaccine is not given after age 7 years, when the risks of the vaccine become greater than those of pertussis. The first dose is usually given at the 2-month well-child visit. Infants are highly susceptible to pertussis, which can be a life-threatening illness in this age group.

2. A mother tells the nurse that she does not want her infant immunized because of the discomfort associated with injections. What should the nurse explain?

- a. This cannot be prevented.
- b. Infants do not feel pain as adults do.
- c. This is not a good reason for refusing immunizations.
- d. A topical anesthetic can be applied before injections are given.

ANS: D

To minimize the discomfort associated with intramuscular injections, a topical anesthetic agent can be used on the injection site. These include EMLA (eutectic mixture of local anesthetic) and vapor coolant sprays. Pain associated with many procedures can be prevented or minimized by using the principles of atraumatic care. Infants have neural pathways that will indicate pain. Numerous research studies have indicated that infants perceive and react to pain in the same manner as do children and adults. The mother should be allowed to discuss her concerns and the alternatives available. This is part of the informed consent process.
