

First test was to check to see if there was B+ at Pin 28-Trans Control Out. This is the B+ that supplies the solenoids and the signal from the TIPM that the circuit is good. After some drive time, the voltage went to 0.0 volts.

The technician tested the solenoids and the harness and verified they were good. It was recommended to replace the TIPM at this time.

Key on B+ to TIPM was monitored at Pin 18. We were looking to see if the PCM was dropping B+. B+ remained when code set. We determined the PCM did not see a problem and turn off the relay.
