Rights Of Way To Brasilia Teimosa The Politics Of Squatter Settlement:

Rights of Way to Brasília Teimosa Charles J. Fortin, 2014-07-01 The site of Recife's Brasília Teimosa favela emerged as a flash point of economic and political interests in the 1930s and the scene of subsequent strife into the 1980s The name of this district is a contemptuous allusion to the new capital of Brazil with its forward thinking planning policies and urban design in stark contrast to the favela This concise account unearths events surfacing through periods of revolution dictatorship populism Cuban Communism the 1964 military coup d'etat and crackdown to the amplified reverberation of civil society voices and engagement decades later Shifting ideologies and jolting transitions between regimes directly affected what occurred on this 110 acre parcel of urban land Between 1934 and 1984 competing groups and individuals came to covet this space because of its strategic location and political consequence Brasília Teimosa is about the politics of ouster and the power of resistance What took place there still resonates in squatter settlements throughout Brazil deplorable living conditions prevalent in favelas are the result of deprivation of access to market resources This work examines the interactions between the state and neighbourhood associations regarding the allocation of public goods and services in the context of urban resources and their system of supply In particular it focuses on the political struggles of shanty residents of Brasília Teimosa that are pertinent to the provision of and access to urban land tenure Control and use of public lands have functioned as instruments of the state to pursue political projects in coalition with private real estate partners to undermine the strength of opposing factions or to seal populist pacts with the urban poor who as illegal occupants of public land are locked into a dependency relationship with the state As will be shown the residents of Brasília Teimosa discovered and exploited space for political manoeuvres in order to secure permanence on a centrally located publicly owned site

Ethnographies of 'On Demand' Films Alex Vailati, Gabriela Zamorano Villarreal, 2021-09-30 Over the last two decades the advent of cheap user friendly video technologies has contributed to a revolution in representational agency Videos are now made by production units that are at times composed of families churches musical groups community associations or other institutions Thus on demand videos produced and distributed within local and atypical networks profoundly shape contemporary urban imaginaries This book explores the intertwined relations among infrastructure technology and modernity through an ordinary yet little studied field of on demand audiovisual production which involves processes of negotiation and interaction between clients and commissioned video makers On demand films are considered as a space of collaboration and self representation that allows to reflect on the potential of fiction artifice and montage to render material desires aspirations and ideas of the future Legalization of Urban Land and Legal Changes Alexandrina Saldanha Sobreira de Moura, 1986 Understanding Human Need Hartley Dean, 2020-04-22 This second edition of a widely respected textbook is one of the few resources available to provide an overview of human need as a key concept in the social sciences Taking an approach encompassing both global North and South this accessible and engaging book models existing practical and theoretical approaches to human need while also proposing a radical alternative Incorporating crucial current debates and illustrations the author explores distinctions between different types and levels of need how different approaches are reflected in different sorts of policy goals debates about the relationship between needs rights and welfare contested thinking about needs in relation to caring disadvantage and humanity Fully revised and updated this new edition pays due regard to the shifting nature of welfare ideologies and welfare regimes Offering essential insights for students of social policy it will also be of interest to other social science disciplines policy makers and political activists Habitat News ,1987
