Ritual Poetry And The Politics Of Death In Early Japan:

Ritual Poetry and the Politics of Death in Early Japan Gary L. Ebersole, 2020-09-01 This examination of death rituals in early Japan finds in the practice of double burial a key to understanding the Taika Era 645 710 A D Drawing on narratives and poems from the earliest Japanese texts the Kojiki the Nihonshoki and the Man yoshu an anthology of poetry it argues that double burial was the center of a manipulation of myth and ritual for specific ideological and factional purposes This volume has significantly raised the standard of scholarship on early Japanese and Man yoshu studies Joseph Kitagawa So convincing is the historical and religious thought displayed here it is impossible to imagine how anyone can ever again read these documents in the old way Alan L Miller The Journal of Religion A central resource for historians of early Japan David L Barnhill History of Religions

Traversing the Frontier H. Mack Horton, 2020-03-17 In the sixth month of 736 a Japanese diplomatic mission set out for the kingdom of Silla on the Korean peninsula The envoys undertook the mission during a period of strained relations with the country of their destination met with adverse winds and disease during the voyage and returned empty handed The futile journey proved fruitful in one respect its literary representation a collection of 145 Japanese poems and their Sino Japanese kanbun headnotes and footnotes made its way into the eighth century poetic anthology Man y sh becoming the longest poetic sequence in the collection and one of the earliest Japanese literary travel narratives Featuring deft translations and incisive analysis this study investigates the poetics and thematics of the Silla sequence uncovering what is known about the actual historical event and the assumptions and concerns that guided its re creation as a literary artifact and then helped shape its reception among contemporary readers H Mack Horton provides an opportunity for literary archaeology of some of the most exciting dialectics in early Japanese literary history The Material Culture of Death in Medieval Japan Karen Margaret Gerhart, 2009-07-29 This study is the first in the English language to explore the ways medieval Japanese sought to overcome their sense of powerlessness over death By attending to both religious practice and ritual objects used in funerals in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries it seeks to provide a new understanding of the relationship between the two Karen Gerhart looks at how these special objects and rituals functioned by analyzing case studies culled from written records diaries and illustrated handscrolls and by examining surviving funerary structures and painted and sculpted images The work is divided into two parts beginning with compelling depictions of funerary and memorial rites of several members of the aristocracy and military elite The second part addresses the material culture of death and analyzes objects meant to sequester the dead from the living screens shrouds coffins carriages wooden fences This is followed by an examination of implements banners canopies censers musical instruments offering vessels used in memorial rituals The final chapter discusses the various types of and uses for portraits of the deceased focusing on the manner of their display the patrons who commissioned them and the types of rituals performed in front of them Gerhart delineates the distinction between objects created for a single funeral and meant for use in close proximity to the body such as coffins and those such as banners intended for use in multiple funerals and other Buddhist services Richly detailed and generously illustrated Gerhart introduces a new perspective on objects typically either overlooked by scholars or valued primarily for their artistic qualities By placing them in the context of ritual visual and material culture she reveals how rituals and ritual objects together helped to comfort the living and improve the deceased's situation in the afterlife as well as to guide and cement societal norms of class and gender Not only does her book make a significant contribution in the impressive amount of new information that it introduces it also makes an important theoretical contribution as well in its interweaving of the interests and approaches of the art historian and the historian of religion By directly engaging and challenging methodologies relevant to ritual studies material culture and art history it changes once and for all our way of thinking about the visual and religious culture of premodern Japan

Political Memoir George W. Egerton, 1994 The genre of political memoir has a long history from its origins in classical times through its popularity in the age of courts and cabinets to its ubiquity in modern mass cultures where retired politicians increasingly attract large and eager readerships for their revelations Yet there is virtually no scholarly criticism which treats this complex form of literature as a distinct genre fusing autobiographical historical and political elements The essays in this book draw together the collaborative findings of a team of British European American and Canadian scholars to present a pioneering historical and critical study of the genre of political memoir analysing the development of its distinct functions and assessing leading memoirists in European American Canadian Indian and Japanese societies The editor George Egerton introduces the volume and surveys the principal features of the genre over its long history Otto Pflanze analyses the memoirs of Bismarck Robert Young Milton Israel Joshua Mostow and Robert Bothwell study the memoir literature of France India Japan and Canada respectively Barry Gough and Tim Travers look at naval and military memoirists while Zara Steiner B J C McKercher and Valerie Cromwell assess the memoirs of diplomats and their families Leonidas Hill examines the memoirs of leading Nazis John Munro Francis Heller and Robert Ferrell convey inside information on the making of memoirs notably by the Canadian Prime Ministers Diefenbaker and Pearson and the American President Truman Stephen Ambrose assays Nixon as memoirist while Janos Bak portrays the status of memoirists under totalitarian regimes Wesley Wark and John Naylor analyse the proliferation of intelligence memoirs and government efforts to protect official secrets from the revelations of the candid memoirist The principal findings reached by the contributors in their study of this problematic but influential genre are set out by the editor in the concluding chapter Hitomaro: Poet as God Anne Commons, 2009-05-31

Kakinomoto no Hitomaro fl ca 690 is generally regarded as one of the pre eminent poets of premodern Japan While most existing scholarship on Hitomaro is concerned with his poetry this study foregrounds the process of his reception and canonization as a deity of Japanese poetry Building on new interest in issues of canon formation in premodern Japanese literature this book traces the reception history of Hitomaro from its earliest beginnings to the early modern period documenting and analysing the phases of the process through which Hitomaro was transformed from an admired poet to a poetic deity The result is a new perspective on a familiar literary figure through his placement within the broader context of Japanese poetic culture The Aesthetics of Japanese Fascism Alan Tansman, 2009-08-12 In this wide ranging study of Japanese cultural expression Alan Tansman reveals how a particular often seemingly innocent aesthetic sensibility present in novels essays popular songs film and political writings helped create an aesthetic of fascism in the years leading up to World War II Evoking beautiful moments of violence both real and imagined these works did not lead to fascism in any instrumental sense Yet Tansman suggests they expressed and inspired spiritual longings quenchable only through acts in the real world Tansman traces this lineage of aesthetic fascism from its beginnings in the 1920s through its flowering in the 1930s to its afterlife in postwar Japan Encyclopedia of Social History Peter N.
