

The Lifeguard, Swimming Pool and Supervision

ELEMENT 1: The Lifeguard and The Law

The tables below indicate some of these laws, standards and guidelines and how they impact on the role of a lifeguard. These are some of the key references and not intended to be comprehensive.

Acts

Title	Effect on Lifeguarding
The Health and Safety at Work Act 1974 The Safety, Health and Welfare Act 2005 (Ireland)	Your employer must comply with this Act and in doing so will set out appropriate arrangements. To ensure you meet your obligations you must: - Take reasonable care of your own and other people's health and safety - Follow the training you have received when using any work from your employer has given you - Co-operate with your employer on health and safety - Tell someone (your employer, supervisor, or health and safety representative) if you think the workplace or inadequate precautions are putting anyone's health and safety at risk
The Corporate Manslaughter and Corporate Homicide Act 2007 (UK only)	The Corporate Manslaughter and Corporate Homicide Act 2007 is a landmark in law. For the first time, companies and organisations can be found guilty of corporate manslaughter as a result of serious management failures resulting in a gross breach of a duty of care resulting in a death. Your role is to follow your training, adhere to the procedures set out by your employers and act responsibly when carrying out lifeguard duties.
Health and Safety (Offences) Act 2008	This Act provides courts with greater sentencing powers for those who break health and safety law including increased penalties (fines) and for certain breaches by an individual can include prison sentences. It is therefore essential, as with all of the above, that you follow the training your employer provides and that you undertake your roles and responsibilities as lifeguard seriously and in accordance with all procedures. Not following or breaking the rules, under this Act, could result in very serious consequences.
The Regulations	Under the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005, Fire (Scotland) Act 2005 your employer must carry out a fire safety risk assessment, and implement and maintain a fire management plan.
The Equality Act 2010	The Equality Act 2010 aims to protect people with disabilities and prevent disability discrimination. It provides legal rights for people with disabilities in the areas of: - Employment - Education - Access to goods, services and facilities including larger private clubs and taxi based transport services - Dwelling and renting land or property - Functions of public bodies, for example the issuing of licences The Equality Act also provides rights for people not to be directly discriminated against or harassed because they have an association with people with disabilities. This can apply to a carer or parent of people with disabilities. In addition, people must not be directly discriminated against or harassed because they are wrongly perceived to have disabilities.
