Seth Our Journey Through Addiction Heartbreak And Hope:

Seth Karin Murphy,2015-12-02 Most parents and young people who hear our story may be interested may be intrigued and even sympathize with what we have gone through Some may deeply empathize because they have shared similar pain and tragedy But what we really notice as we tell our story to parents and youth is a cautious perhaps courteous but sometimes blunt refusal to accept the responsibility of this truth kids yes even your kids may indeed be into drugs you simply may not know it Unless and until parents become actively engaged in their kids lives the problems of addiction may never be confronted because like the ostrich the parents willingly place their heads in the sand and fail to observe and listen to people like us Failing especially to observe the actions and listen to the words of their children My kids would never do drugs Really A comment like that may become the key to a lifetime of struggle and tragedy and ultimately death Fortunately and through God s grace there is hope And we know that hope when it is anchored in the reality of fact and faith does not disappoint Hope in the midst of tragedy is what has motivated me to write this book to help educate parents and kids so that tragedy in others lives may indeed be prevented The first step toward preparation is knowledge My husband and I will share our knowledge with you and we hope you stay with the book and gain the knowledge that will lead to your active involvement in your kids lives We hope because you face the truth and become involved that you are spared the kind of personal tragedy that we experienced The truth will set you free only if you know it and vow to become wholly engaged in the lives of your kids Observe them and listen to their words It could change your life and the lives of your kids forever
