Prepping for Survival in a Disaster Be Tougher than the Disasters Table of Contents Introduction Chapter 1 Disaster Management Cycle Chapter 2 Kinds of Disasters Chapter 3 Prepping in General Chapter 4 Survival during a Terrorist Attacks Chapter 5 Survival during a Natural Disaster Chapter 6 Survival during Chemical or Manmade Disasters Chapter 7 Surviving Disasters of Sabotage Chapter 8 Surviving a Disaster of Public Disorder Chapter 9 Surviving Disasters of Technical Mishaps Conclusion Author Bio Publisher Introduction Disasters just happen they do not send signals before happening and one must be prepared to combat any such situations in life Disaster management is basically the self preparedness before a disaster at the time of the disaster and post disaster Being prepared for the worst does not necessarily mean you will avoid worst but it can definitely mitigate the effects of the worst Disasters can be caused naturally and can be planned to bring some harm to a specific person or to a group of people Whatever the case may be it still brings a lot of pain and suffering along with it This is why it is important that we try our best to avoid any kind of disasters from affecting our own lives Disasters have certain features and one must be prepared according to the type of the disaster The features are listed below Duration short term vs long term Some kinds of disasters happen for a short interval of time and it takes less time to bring our lives back on track whereas some of them take a lot of time to resolve A classic example for the first scenario can be a local riot and the second one can be nuclear radiation out of a chemical blast Scale affecting individual or masses There are a few situations that are very personal in nature like your career getting sabotaged or your water heater breaking Then there are other circumstances like terrorist attacks floods and etc which inflict pain among a huge mass Recovery Time Days Months Years Situations like local theft or protests get under control within few days but there are situations like nuclear radiation that leaves their effects for years to come
