Richard Guy, 2013-11-11 To many laymen mathematicians appear to be problem solvers people who do hard sums Even inside the profession we classify ourselves as either theorists or problem solvers Mathematics is kept alive much more than by the activities of either class by the appearance of a succession of unsolved problems both from within mathematics itself and from the increasing number of disciplines where it is applied Mathematics often owes more to those who ask questions than to those who answer them The solution of a problem may stifle interest in the area around it But Fermat's Last Theorem because it is not yet a theorem has generated a great deal of good mathematics whether goodness is judged by beauty by depth or by applicability To pose good unsolved problems is a difficult art The balance between triviality and hopeless unsolvability is delicate There are many simply stated problems which experts tell us are unlikely to be solved in the next generation But we have seen the Four Color Conjecture settled even if we don't live long enough to learn the status of the Riemann and Goldbach hypotheses of twin primes or Mersenne primes or of odd perfect numbers On the other hand unsolved problems may not be unsolved at all or than was at first thought Geometry, Its Elements and Structure Alfred S.
