Self And Relationships Self And Relationships:

Sex and Gender Differences in Personal Relationships Daniel J. Canary, Tara M. Emmers-Sommer, Sandra Faulkner, 1998-10-16 Challenging a commonly held assumption that men and women hail from different psychological and social planets this illuminating work reexamines what the empirical research really shows about how the sexes communicate in close relationships The volume demonstrates that stereotypical beliefs about men and women fail to predict their actual interaction behavior and highlights evidence of similarities as well as differences between the two groups Setting forth an integrative theory of gender differences the authors propose that communication behavior in different activities is the means by which sex and gender role expectations are created and sustained This volume is suitable for students scholars and researchers in communication social psychology marriage and family studies and gender studies as well as clinicians working with individuals couples and families Computer-mediated Communication in Personal Relationships Kevin B. Wright, Lynne M. Webb, 2011 Lynne M Webb Ph D University of Oregon is Professor in Communication at the University of Arkansas She previously served as a tenured faculty member at the Universities of Florida and Memphis Her research examines young adults interpersonal communication in romantic and family contexts Her research appears in over 50 essays published in scholarly journals and edited volumes including computers in Human Behavior Communication Education Health Communication and Journal of Family Communication Book Jacket Personal Relationships and Personal Networks Malcolm R. Parks, 2017-09-25 The effort to understand personal relationships has traditionally focused on the individual characteristics of participants Personal Relationships and Personal Networks takes this analysis a step further focusing on research linking participants feelings and actions within a given personal relationship to the larger social context surrounding it Author Malcolm R Parks expands on the idea that the initiation development maintenance and dissolution of relationships are inextricably connected to each participant's social network a perspective that allows for a better appreciation of our connection to the world and a greater understanding our significant power as social actors This book offers a new way to consider basic notions about how relationships form such as how particular people meet and how relationships are started Among many findings the volume demonstrates that individuals in relationships feel closer and generally more connected when they also have a greater amount of contact with the members of each other's personal networks and when they believe that network members support their relationship Additional topics discussed include how this social context model is applicable to different types of relationships how participants interact with network members how social networks are involved in the deterioration of personal relationships and what drives change in relationships Students researchers and professionals in a wide variety of disciplines such as communication psychology sociology anthropology family studies clinical psychology public health nursing education and social work will find this book useful as will anyone seeking to better understand their own personal relationships Dialectical Approaches to Studying Personal

Relationships Barbara M. Montgomery, Leslie A. Baxter, 2013-09-13 This book describes many different and useful ways of understanding personal relationships from a dialectical perspective It is written for scholars in higher education both faculty and students across many fields within the social sciences and the humanities who seek answers to questions about how people relate to one another The book is valuable for all scholars who pursue new ideas because it models a form of scholarly communication in which multiple voices can be acknowledged as valid the worth of one perspective is not measured by the denigration of another and difference is celebrated as conducive to learning rather than threatening to it The contributors emphasize the characteristics of their dialectical view that set them apart from other dialectical authors and describe their methods of studying relationships from a dialectical perspective Following the Bakhtinian perspective they honor the values of dialogism by respecting different and sometimes contradictory views assuming that these views can be valid and joining in a discussion with the editors and other contributors about their emerging work They also acknowledge that the chapters in this text are part of an ongoing process to frame and reframe emerging ideas and allow the dialogue that occurs within this frame the freedom to express creative unique ideas
