current affairs Suffer the Children Gary Scott Smith, Jane Marie Smith, 2017-01-31 We all say that we care about children. We all know that millions of children around the world, including in the United States, are suffering physically, materially, and emotionally and are unable to reach their full potential. Moreover, their material deprivation and physical illness often prevent them from responding to the gospel. Most of us conclude that we cannot do anything significant to help the impoverished children living in our own backyards, let alone those living in the slums of Nairobi or the hinterlands of Haiti. We can, however, do much to improve their lives materially and spiritually. Through praying, giving, generously sponsoring children, volunteering with aid organizations, living more simply, investing and shopping more prudently, and advocating more zealously in the political arena, we can make a difference. We can prod politicians, business executives, and church leaders to prioritize aiding destitute children. We can support one of the hundreds of organizations that are working effectively to help indigent children have better lives. Suffer the Children describes the plight of poor children and provides many practical ways we can participate in one of the most important crusades to improve our world.

Making Markets More Inclusive K. McKague, M. Siddiquee, 2014-07-24 Most studies of doing business at the bottom of the economic pyramid focus on viewing the poor as consumers, as micro entrepreneurs, or as potential employees of local companies. Almost no analysis focuses on the poor as primary producers of agricultural commodities, a striking omission given that primary producers are by far the largest segment of the working age population in developing economies. Making Markets More Inclusive bridges the management literature with original research on agricultural value chains in developing and emerging economies. This exciting work is the first to delve into the skills, capabilities, strategies, and approaches needed for inclusive value chain development. McKague shows how NGOs and companies can connect poor producers in developing economies with the right markets to better create social and economic impact. He also analyzes one of the leading agricultural value chain initiatives in the world, which is being replicated by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation in several different value chains in Malawi, Tanzania, Ghana, India, and Mali.

- Farmer Training: Kallani Rani increased the productivity of her cows, became a cattle feed seller in her village (Chapter 6), and opened a fresh milk canteen in her local market (Chapter 7).
- She now trains other women farmers and works to improve opportunities for women in her community (Chapter 5).
- Animal Health Care Services: Asma Husna trained to be an animal health worker with CARE to provide important animal health services and education to local farmers on a fee-for-service basis (Chapter 6).
- Cattle Feed Shops: Fulera Akter started a business as a cattle feed seller after demand for nutritional animal feed grew due to farmers' improved knowledge of nutrition (Chapter 6).
- Savings Groups: Coauthor Muhammad Siddiquee, the Coordinator of Agriculture and Value Chain Programs at CARE Bangladesh, discusses the value of farmer savings groups (Chapter 6).
- Milk Collection: Sarothi Rani became a milk collector to earn an improved income for her family and provide an important service to other dairy farmers in her community Chapter 7 Digital Fat Testing Introducing digital fat testing machines into the dairy value chain helped reward farmers for making investments in producing higher quality milk as well as ensuring transparent and timely payments Chapter 7 Microfranchising Supporting agricultural input shop owners with training relationships to suppliers common branding and standardized customer services improves the productivity of smallholder farmers and the profitability of shops Chapter 12 Bangladesh Dairy Value Chain Learning Reflections from some of the 40 CARE staff from 17 countries who came to Bangladesh to learn from the experience of the dairy value chain project Chapter 15 Food for All in Africa Gordon Conway, Ousmane Badiane, Katrin Glatzel, 2019-11-15 Africa requires a new agricultural transformation that is appropriate for Africa that recognizes the continent's diverse environments and climates and that takes into account its histories and cultures while benefiting rural smallholder farmers and their families In this boldly optimistic book Sir Gordon Conway Ousmane Badiane and Katrin Glatzel describe the key challenges faced by Africa's smallholder farmers and present the concepts and practices of Sustainable Intensification SI as opportunities to sustainably transform Africa's agriculture sector and the livelihoods of millions of smallholders The way forward they write will be an agriculture sector deeply rooted within SI producing more with less using fertilizers and pesticides more prudently adapting to climate change improving natural capital adopting new technologies and building resilience at every stage of the agriculture value chain Food for All in Africa envisions a virtuous circle generated through agricultural development rooted in SI that results in greater yields healthier diets improved livelihoods for farmers and sustainable economic opportunities for the rural poor that in turn generate further investment It describes the benefits of digital technologies for farmers and the challenges of transforming African agricultural policies and creating effective and inspiring leadership Food for All in Africa demonstrates why we should take on the challenge and provides ideas and methods through which it can be met Food Security and Scarcity C. Peter Timmer, 2015-01-06 In countries that have managed to confront and cope with the challenges of food insecurity over the past two centuries markets have done the heavy lifting Markets serve as the arena for allocating society's scarce resources to meet the virtually unlimited needs and desires of consumers no other mechanism can efficiently signal fluctuations in scarcity and abundance the cost of labor or the value of commodities But markets fail at tasks that society regards as important thus governments have had to intervene to stabilize the economic environment and provide essential public goods such as transportation and communications networks agricultural research and development and access to quality health and educational facilities Ending hunger requires that each society find the right balance of market forces and government interventions to drive a process of economic growth that reaches the poor and ensures that food supplies are readily and reliably available and accessible to even the poorest households But locating that balance has been a major challenge for many countries and seems to be getting more difficult as the global economy becomes more integrated and less stable Food Security and Scarcity explains what forms those challenges take in the long run and short term and at global national and household levels C Peter Timmer best known for his work on the definitive text Food Policy Analysis draws on decades of food security research and analysis to produce the most comprehensive and up to date assessment of what makes a productive sustainable and stable food system and why so many countries have fallen short Poverty and hunger are different in every country so the manner of coping with the challenges of ending hunger and keeping it at bay will depend on equally country specific analysis governance and solutions Timmer shows that for all their problems and failures markets and food prices are ultimately central to solving the problem of hunger and that any coherent strategy to improve food security will depend on an in depth understanding of how food markets operate Published in association with the Center for Global Development
