Quantitative Methods in Tourism Rodolfo Baggio,Jane Klobas,2011-03-15 Tourism studies often deal with complex mixes of external and local factors and the attitudes perceptions and actions of tourists themselves In seeking to understand individual elements of this mix or the results of interactions between them tourism authorities managers and researchers often collect quantitative data but until now the few existing guides to understanding quantitative data have been either very simple or very complicated This book provides a guide to dealing with real world data and goes beyond the methods usually covered in introductory textbooks The first part considers key issues associated with using well known methods to produce valid and reliable models of real world phenomena emphasizing issues in data selection approaches to factor and cluster analysis and mathematical modelling using regression methods including logistic regression and structural equation modelling The second part covers new approaches to modelling maximum likelihood estimation simulation and agent based modelling Each chapter includes extensive references to additional reading and an appendix summarises the software introduced in the book The book provides many practical examples of applications to tourism research considers practical issues associated with application of quantitative techniques and discusses common pitfalls and how to identify and remedy them The result is a guide to quantitative methods in tourism that de mystifies both simple and apparently complex techniques and makes them more accessible to tourism researchers Quantitative Studies in Green and Conservation Criminology Michael J. Lynch,Stephen F. Pires,2019-07-17 During the early development and throughout the short history of green conservation criminology limited attention has been directed toward quantitative analyses of relevant environmental crime law and justice concerns While recognizing the importance of establishing a theory and terminology in the early stages of development this book redresses this imbalance The work features contributions that undertake empirical quantitative studies of green conservation crime and justice issues by both conservation and green criminologists The collection highlights the shared concerns of these groups within important forms of ecological crime and victimization and illustrates the ways in which these approaches can be undertaken quantitatively It includes quantitative conservation green criminological studies that represent the work of both well established scholars in these fields along with studies by scholars whose works are less well known and who are also contributing to shaping this area of research The book presents a valuable contribution to the areas of Green and Conservation Criminology It will appeal to academics and students working in these areas
