

Guide to Solving Genetics Problems

Vocabulary:

allele - the different versions of a gene (G = green plant, g = yellow plant)

genotype - the two alleles that an individual has (Gg)

phenotype - the trait or characteristic that an individual has (green)

P generation - parent generation

F1 generation - first generation of offspring (from the parent generation)

F2 generation - second generation of offspring (from the parent generation); the offspring of a cross between two individuals from the F1 generation

Simple Dominance

Simple dominance occurs when the two alleles for a single trait are dominant and recessive. The dominant trait will always show up if the allele is present. The recessive trait will only show up when the dominant allele is not present.

Example: Two heterozygous parents (Bb) for black hair (brown is recessive) have 4 children. How many of their children will have black hair?

1. Write the possible gametes of the parents on the top and left sides of your box.

	B	b
b

2. Fill the spaces in the box with the alleles above and to the left of each space.

	B	b
B	BB	Bb
b	Bb	bb

3. Calculate percent or fraction of children with each genotype.

25% BB, 50% Bb, 25% bb

or

¼ BB, ½ Bb, ¼ bb

4. Calculate percent or fraction of children with each phenotype.

75% black hair, 25% brown hair

or

¾ black hair, ¼ brown hair

5. Apply your calculations to the question asked.

Based on the statistics, 3 of the children will have black hair and 1 will have brown hair.
