550 Paracord (Type III)

The ties presented in this book were created with 450 paracord. I used 450 paracord because I enjoy its pliability (very amenable to fusion knotting techniques) and the variety of colors it comes in. However, 550 paracord and a wide variety of other cord types, including (but not limited to) solid braid nylon, hemp, satin, fabric, leather cords, and even wire, could be used to create all the designs shown in this book. In short, if in doubt, give it a tie!

Sources

If living in the U.S., your paracord purchasing options are many, and include army surplus stores, hardware stores, and (in some communities) arts and craft stores. Be this as it may, not all people reading this book live in the U.S. or have access to (local) storefront paracord vendors. If this is you, don't worry. Thankfully, there are online vendors who sell paracord, and they ship both domestically and internationally.

Vendors

The following is a list of online paracord vendors. My hope is that one of them will meet your paracord needs.
