in Canadian Black Feminist Writing Maria Caridad Casas, 2009 This book develops a theory of multimodality the participation of a text in more than one mode centred on the poetry poetics of Lillian Allen Claire Harris Dionne Brand and Marlene Nourbese Philip How do these poets represent oral Caribbean English Creoles CECs in writing and negotiate the relationship between the high literary in Canadian letters and the social and historical meanings of CECs How do the latter relate to the idea of female and black Through fluid use of code and mode switching the movement of Brand and Philip between creole and standard English and written orality and standard writing forms part of their meanings Allen s eye spellings precisely indicate stereotypical creole sounds yet use the phonological system of standard English On stage Allen projects a black female body in the world and as a speaking subject She thereby shows that the implication of the written in the literary excludes her body s language as performance and she embodies her poetry to realize a language alternative to the colonizing literary Harris s creole writing helps her project a fragmented personality a range of dialects enabling quite different personae to emerge within one body Thus Harris Brand Philip and Allen both project the identity female and black and explore this social position in relation to others Considering textual multimodality opens up a wide range of material connections Although written this poetry is also oral if oral then also embodied if embodied then also participating in discourses of race gender sexuality and a host of other systems of social organization and individual identity Finally the semiotic body as a mode i e as a resource for making meaning allows written meanings to be made that cannot otherwise be expressed in writing In every case Allen Philip Harris and Brand escape the constraints of dominant media refiguring language via dialect and mode to represent a black feminist sensibility Discourses, Modes, Media and Meaning in an Era of Pandemic Sabine Tan, Marissa K. L. Multimodality Janina Wildfeuer, Jana Pflaeging, John Bateman, Ognjan Seizov, Chiao-I Tseng, 2019-11-18. Multimodality's popularity as a semiotic approach has not resulted in a common voice yet. Its conceptual anchoring as well as its empirical applications often remain localized and disparate and ideas of a theory of multimodality are heterogeneous and uncoordinated. For the field to move ahead it must achieve a more mature status of reflection, mutual support and interaction with regard to both past and future directions. The red thread across the disciplines reflected in this book is a common goal of capturing the mechanisms of synergetic knowledge construction and transmission using diverse forms of expressions, i.e. multimodality. The collection of chapters brought together in the book reflects both a diversity of disciplines and common interests and challenges, thereby establishing an excellent roadmap for the future. The contributions revisit and redefine theoretical concepts or empirical analyses which are crucial to the study of multimodality from various perspectives with a view towards evolving issues of multimodal analysis. With this the book aims at repositioning the field as a well-grounded scientific discipline with significant implications for future communication research in many fields of study. Information Design Alison Black, Paul Luna, Ole Lund, Sue Walker, 2017-01-12. Information Design provides citizens, business and government with a means of presenting and interacting with complex information. It embraces applications from wayfinding and map reading to forms design, from website and screen layout to instruction. Done well, it can communicate across languages and cultures, convey complicated instructions, even change behaviours. Information Design offers an authoritative guide to this important multidisciplinary subject. The book weaves design theory and methods with case studies of professional practice from leading information designers across the world. The heavily illustrated text is rigorous yet readable and offers a single must-have reference to anyone interested in information design or any of its related disciplines such as interaction design and information architecture, information graphics, document design, universal design, service design, map making and wayfinding. Multiliteracies, Multimodality, and Learning by Design in Second Language Learning and Teacher Education Agustín Reyes-Torres, María Estela Brisk, Manel Lacorte, 2025-04-30.
