be too quick to dismiss professionals with expertise in interrogation and interviewing who believe there are ways to catch liars and detect lies 3 The scientific conclusion is that people are not very good at detecting lies in lie detection experiments published prior to 2006 The research did not prove that lies cannot be detected It showed that lies cannot be accurately detected in the type of experiments used to study lie detection 4 I grew up the son of a real estate salesperson and I was interested in sales and social influence as a teenager I knew I wanted to be a professor and I ended up getting into the highly regarded PhD program at Michigan State University where two leaders in persuasion were on the faculty
