Primary Productivity In The Sea Environmental Science Research:

Primary Productivity in the Sea Paul Falkowski, 2013-03-09 Primary productivity in the sea accounts for 30% of the total global annual production Holistic understanding of the factors determining marine productivity requires detailed knowledge of algal physiology and of hydrodynamics Traditionally studies of aquatic primary productivity have been conducted by workers in two major schools experimental laboratory biology and empirical field ecology Here an attempt was made to bring together people from both schools to share information and concepts each author was charged with reviewing his field of expertise The scope of the Symposium is broad which we feel is its strength We gratefully acknowledge financial support from the Department of Energy the United States Environmental Protection Agency the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration including the NMFS Northeast Fisheries Center and the MESA New York Bight Project Thanks are due to Mrs Margaret Dienes without whose editorial skills this volume could not have been produced and to Mrs Helen Kondratuk as Symposium Coordinator Finally we wish to record our indebtedness to Dr Alexander Hollander for his tireless efforts and valuable advice in supporting all aspects of this Symposium

The Changing Ocean Carbon Cycle Roger B.

Hanson, Hugh W. Ducklow, John G. Field, 2000-01-13 The world's oceans act as a reservoir with the capacity to absorb and retain carbon dioxide The air-sea exchange of carbon is driven by physico-chemical forces photosynthesis and respiration and has an important influence on atmospheric composition Variability in the ocean carbon cycle could therefore exert significant feedback effects during conditions of climate change The Joint Global Ocean Flux Study JGOFS is the first multidisciplinary program to directly address the interactions among the biology chemistry and physics of marine systems with emphasis on the transport and transformations of carbon within the ocean and across its boundaries This unique volume written by an international panel of scientists provides a synthesis of JGOFS science and its achievements to date The authoritative chapters will be of great interest to readers seeking a current overview of the role of ocean processes in Earth system science and their wider implications for climate change

Ecological Water Quality Voudouris, 2012-05-16 This book attempts to cover various issues of water quality in the fields of Hydroecology and Hydrobiology and present various Water Treatment Technologies Sustainable choices of water use that prevent water quality problems aiming at the protection of available water resources and the enhancement of the aquatic ecosystems should be our main target

Aquatic

Ecosystems in a Changing Climate Donat-P Häder, Kunshan Gao, 2018-11-16 Global climate change affects productivity and species composition of freshwater and marine aquatic ecosystems by raising temperatures ocean acidification excessive solar UV and visible radiation Effects on bacterioplankton and viruses phytoplankton and macroalgae have far-reaching consequences for primary consumers such as zooplankton invertebrates and vertebrates as well as on human consumption of fish crustaceans and mollusks It has affected the habitation of the Arctic and Antarctic oceans the most so far Increasing pollution from terrestrial runoff industrial municipal and household wastes as well as marine transportation and plastic debris also affect aquatic ecosystems Coastal environmental and ecological data analysis Meilin Wu, Yu-Pin Lin, Biraja Kumar Sahu, Ana Carolina Ruiz-Fernández, 2023-04-17 Primary Productivity and Biogeochemical Cycles in the Sea Paul G. Falkowski, Avril D. Woodhead, 1992 Marine Carbon Biogeochemistry Jack J. Middelburg, 2019-01-25

This open access book discusses biogeochemical processes relevant to carbon and aims to provide readers graduate students and researchers with insight into the functioning of marine ecosystems A carbon centric approach has been adopted but other elements are included where relevant or needed The book focuses on concepts and quantitative understanding of primary production organic matter mineralization and sediment biogeochemistry The impact of biogeochemical processes on inorganic carbon dynamics and organic matter transformation are also discussed Microbial Ecology in the North Pacific Subtropical Gyre Samuel T. Wilson, Matthew J. Church, 2018-11-16 The microbial community in the oligotrophic North Pacific Subtropical Gyre is dominated by unicellular microorganisms less than a few micrometers in size Despite the persistent low nutrient concentrations phytoplankton growth rates appear near maximal sustained by the recycling of nutrients with plankton population sizes regulated by processes such as zooplankton grazing and viral lysis Seasonal pulses of particle export to the deep sea and increases in phytoplankton abundance occur during the summer months however the factors that result in these imbalances in growth and loss processes are not well understood Nonetheless as a result of persistent fieldwork and development of sensitive methodologies the biogeochemical and ecological dynamics occurring over timescales ranging from diel to interannual are being revealed This Research Topic covers multiple aspects of microbial oceanography in the oligotrophic North Pacific Subtropical Gyre including identification and isolation of microorganisms quantification of microbial biomass and turnover metabolism and physiological activities and microbial mediated biogeochemical cycling All of the papers use field data collected by either the Hawaii Ocean Time series HOT program the Center for Microbial Oceanography Research and Education C MORE or the Simons Collaboration on Ocean Processes and Ecology SCOPE These three programs have greatly increased our understanding of microbial ecology and biogeochemical cycling in the NPSG in part by providing unparalleled access to the NPSG on oceanographic research vessels Primary Productivity and Biogeochemical Cycles in the Sea Paul G. Falkowski, Avril D. Woodhead, 1992-05-31 Biological processes in the oceans play a crucial role in regulating the fluxes of many important elements such as carbon nitrogen sulfur oxygen phosphorus and silicon As we come to the end of the 20th century oceanographers have increasingly focussed on how these elements are cycled within the ocean the interdependencies of these cycles and the effect of the cycle on the composition of the earth s atmosphere and climate Many techniques and tools have been developed or adapted over the past decade to help in this effort These include satellite sensors of upper ocean phytoplankton distributions flow cytometry molecular biological probes sophisticated moored and shipboard instrumentation and vastly increased numerical modeling capabilities This volume is the result of the 37th Brookhaven Symposium in Biology in which a wide spectrum of oceanographers chemists biologists and modelers discussed the progress in understanding the role of primary producers in biogeochemical cycles The symposium is dedicated to Dr Richard W Eppley an intellectual giant in biological oceanography who inspired a generation of scientists to delve into problems of understanding biogeochemical cycles in the sea We gratefully acknowledge support from the U S Department of Energy the National Aeronautics and Space Administration the National Science Foundation the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration the Electric Power Research Institute and the Environmental Protection Agency Special thanks to Claire Lamberti for her help in producing this volume Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), First multi year cumulation covers six years 1965 70
