Pricing Carbon A. Denny Ellerman, Frank J. Convery, Christian de Perthuis, 2010-01-28 The European Union's Emissions Trading Scheme EU ETS is the world's largest market for carbon and the most significant multinational initiative ever taken to mobilize markets to protect the environment It will be an important influence on the development and implementation of trading schemes in the US Japan and elsewhere However as is true of any pioneering public policy experiment this scheme has generated much controversy Pricing Carbon provides the first detailed description and analysis of the EU ETS focusing on the first trial period of the scheme 2005-7 Written by an international team of experts it allows readers to get behind the headlines and come to a better understanding of what was done and what happened based on a dispassionate empirically based review of the evidence This book should be read by anyone who wants to know what happens when emissions are capped traded and priced

Pricing Carbon Emissions Aviel Verbruggen, 2021-06-15 Pricing Carbon Emissions provides an economic critique on the utopian idea of a uniform carbon price for addressing rising carbon emissions exposing the flaws in the economic propositions with a key focus on the EU's Emissions Trading System ETS After an Executive Summary of the contents the chapters build up understanding of orthodox economics role in protecting the neoliberal paradigm A salient case the ETS is successful in shielding the Business as Usual activities of the EU's industry however this book argues that the system fails in creating innovation for decarbonizing production technologies A subsequent political economy analysis by the author points to the discursive power of giant fossil fuel and electricity companies keeping up a facade of Cap and Trade utopia and hiding the reality of free permit donations and administrative price control concealing financial bills mostly paid by household electricity customers The twilight between reality and utopia in the EU's ETS are exposed concluding an immediate end of the system is necessary for effective and just climate policy The work argues that the proposition of shifting to a global uniform carbon tax is equally utopian In practice a uniform price applied on heterogeneous cases is not a source of benefits but one of ad hoc adjustments exceptions and exemptions Carbon pricing does not induce innovation however assumed by the economic models used by IPCC for advising global climate policy Thus it is persuasively demonstrated by the author that these schemes are doomed to failure and room and resources need to be created for more effective and just climate politics The book's conclusion is based on economic arguments complementing the critique of political scientists This book is written for a broad audience interested in climate policy eager to understand why decarbonizing progress is slow as it is It marks a significant addition to the literature on climate politics carbon pricing and the political economy of the environment more broadly The Open Access version of this book available at www.taylorfrancis.com has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4.0 license

How Much Carbon Pricing is in Countries' Own Interests? The Critical Role of Co-Benefits Ian W.H. Parry, Mr. Chandara Veung, Mr. Dirk Heine, 2014-09-17 This paper calculates for the top twenty emitting countries how much pricing of carbon dioxide CO₂ emissions is in their own national interests due to domestic co benefits leaving aside the global climate benefits On average nationally efficient prices are substantial 57.5 per ton of CO₂ for year 2010 reflecting primarily health co benefits from reduced air pollution at coal plants and in some cases reductions in automobile externalities net of fuel taxes subsidies Pricing co benefits reduces CO₂ emissions from the top twenty emitters by 13.5 percent a 10.8 percent reduction in global emissions However co benefits vary dramatically across countries e.g. with population exposure to pollution and differentiated pricing of CO₂ emissions therefore yields higher net benefits by 23 percent than uniform pricing Importantly the efficiency case for pricing carbon's co benefits hinges critically on i weak prospects for internalizing other externalities through other pricing instruments and ii productive use of carbon pricing revenues

Can We Price Carbon? Barry G. Rabe, 2018-04-20 A political science analysis of the feasibility and sustainability of carbon pricing drawing from North American European and Asian case studies Climate change economists generally agree is best addressed by putting a price on the carbon content of fossil fuels by taxing carbon by cap and trade systems or other methods But what about the politics of carbon pricing Do political realities render carbon pricing impracticable In this book Barry Rabe offers the first major political science analysis of the feasibility and sustainability of carbon pricing drawing upon a series of real world attempts to price carbon over the last two decades in North America Europe and Asia Rabe asks whether these policies have proven politically viable and if adopted whether they survive political shifts and managerial challenges over time The entire policy life cycle is examined from adoption through advanced implementation on a range of pricing policies including not only carbon taxes and cap and trade but also such alternative methods as taxing fossil fuel extraction These case studies Rabe argues show that despite the considerable political difficulties carbon pricing can be both feasible and durable
