

Chapter 10: Externalities

Review Questions

Explain the difference between market equilibrium and social optimum.

ANSWER: Market equilibrium is when demand is equal to supply; social optimum is when marginal social benefit is equal to marginal social cost.

What is meant by "internalizing" an externality? How can a negative externality be internalized?

ANSWER: Internalizing an externality is when the parties to a market exchange perceive the external cost or benefit as a "cost" or "benefit" that accrues to them as part of the market exchange. One way of internalizing a negative externality is through a unit tax (Pigovian tax) on production and/or consumption.

Using a supply and demand diagram, demonstrate how a positive consumption externality leads to market inefficiency.

ANSWER:

A positive consumption externality leads the market to exchange a smaller quantity than is socially desirable.

The Coase theorem suggests that efficient solutions to externalities can be arrived at through bargaining. Under what circumstances does this fail to produce a solution?

ANSWER:

1. The existence of significant transactions costs.
2. Parties may try to hold out for a better deal, and thus the bargaining process breaks down.
3. The number of parties to a bargaining process is large.
