Peoples On Parade Exhibitions Empire And Anthropology In Nineteenth Century Britain:

Peoples on Parade Sadiah Qureshi, 2011-10-31 Examines the phenomenon of human exhibitions in nineteenth century Britain and considers how this legacy informs understandings of race and empire today The Routledge Research Companion to Nineteenth-Century British Literature and Science John Holmes, Sharon Ruston, 2017-05-18 Tracing the continuities and trends in the complex relationship between literature and science in the long nineteenth century this companion provides scholars with a comprehensive authoritative and up to date foundation for research in this field In intellectual material and social terms the transformation undergone by Western culture over the period was unprecedented Many of these changes were grounded in the growth of science Yet science was not a cultural monolith then any more than it is now and its development was shaped by competing world views To cover the full range of literary engagements with science in the nineteenth century this companion consists of twenty seven chapters by experts in the field which explore crucial social and intellectual contexts for the interactions between literature and science how science affected different genres of writing and the importance of individual scientific disciplines and concepts within literary culture Each chapter has its own extensive bibliography The volume as a whole is rounded out with a synoptic introduction by the editors and an afterword by the eminent historian of nineteenth century science Bernard Lightman Human Exhibitions Rikke Andreassen, 2016-03-09 From the 1870s to the second decade of the twentieth century more than fifty exhibitions of so called exotic people took place in Denmark Here large numbers of people of Asian and African origin were exhibited for the entertainment and education of a mass audience Several of these exhibitions took place in Copenhagen Zoo where different villages constructed in the middle of the zoo hosted men women and children who sometimes stayed for months performing their daily lives for thousands of curious Danes This book draws on unique archival material newly discovered in Copenhagen including photographs documentary evidence and newspaper articles to offer new insights and perspectives on the exhibitions both in Copenhagen and in other European cities Employing post colonial and feminist approaches to the material the author sheds fresh light on the staging of exhibitions the daily life of the exhibitees the wider connections between shows across Europe and the thinking of the time on matters of race science gender and sexuality A window onto contemporary racial understandings Human Exhibitions presents interviews with the descendants of displayed people connecting the attitudes and science of the past with both our continued modern fascination with the exotic and contemporary language and popular culture As such it will be of interest to scholars of sociology anthropology and history working in the areas of gender and sexuality race whiteness and post colonialism Popular Exhibitions, Science and Showmanship, 1840-1910 Joe Kember, John Plunkett, Jill A. Sullivan, 2016-09-12 Victorian culture was characterized by a proliferation of shows and exhibitions These were encouraged by the development of new sciences and technologies together with changes in transportation education and leisure patterns The essays in this collection look at exhibitions and their influence in terms of

location technology and ideology Colonial Ambitions and Collecting Anxieties Nicola Froggatt, 2025-05-09 European portrayals of Aboriginal people and their objects have long had political implications This book explores ethnographic objects from Western Australia now in British and Irish museums and is the first full scholarly treatment of their part in fashioning colonial relationships and identities over the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries It scrutinises a body of material that once sparked extensive scholarly and popular interest but has since been largely overlooked in scholarship into the relationship between collecting and empire This book assesses how non Aboriginal collectors understood Aboriginal objects and what this reveals about colonial relationships anxieties and ambitions Considering objects now spread across the British Isles it examines intersecting impulses that informed collecting notions of the frontier the navigation of one's experiences across sites of empire and the Eurocentric narrative of Aboriginal extinction to show how colonial ideology intersected with personal experience It scrutinises collectors' own accounts as well as the voices of other individuals involved in collecting episodes showing how ideas about indigenous peoples were being developed and contested Colonial Ambitions and Collecting Anxieties is particularly aimed at scholars of material culture histories of collecting and empire cultural heritage workers and other readers interested in museums colonialism and Australian history The Victorians: A Botanical Perspective Luís Manuel Mendonça de Carvalho, 2024-09-28 The Victorians: A Botanical Perspective Volume 1 offers a unique re-evaluation of the Victorian Age and presents a new historiography based on plants It examines the use of gutta serena in the development of electrical measurements provides a detailed history of cocoa and the forced labor in the São Tomé and Príncipe Islands explores the beauty imagination and order of William and May Morris flowers uncovers the world of Charles Darwin and the Victorian Botany Culture highlights the crucial role of the Wardian Case in the global transport of plants reveals the connection between Mid Victorian Botany and Microscopy offers glimpses of the colonial collections at the 1862 London Exhibition explains how botany was connected with the development of photography evokes the desire for a return to Nature and a simple life and finally takes us on a journey through the history of violets The Nature of Endangerment in India Ezra Rashkow, 2023-01-30 This book is a study of the concepts of endangerment and extinction Examining interlinking discourses of biological and cultural diversity loss in western and central India it problematizes the long history of human endangerment and extinction discourse Writing the South African San Lara Atkin, 2022-01-01 This book offers an innovative new framework for reading British and settler representations of Indigenous peoples in the nineteenth century Taking the representation of the Southern African San as its case study it uses methodologies drawn from critical anthropology imperial history and literary studies to show the role that literary representations of Indigenous peoples played in popularising the hierarchical view of racial difference The study identifies an ethnographic poetics in which the claims of scientific discourse blend with a consciously literary preference for metaphor and analogy This created a set of mobile figures that could be disseminated to different reading publics in both Britain and the colonies through a variety of literary genres and textual media It advances research on race and imperial history by focusing on the importance of literature from newspapers and periodicals to popular novels in shaping discourses of national and racial belonging in Britain and the Cape Colony

The Palgrave Encyclopedia of Victorian Women's Writing Lesa Scholl, Emily Morris, 2022-12-15 Since the late twentieth century there has been a strategic campaign to recover the impact of Victorian women writers in the field of English literature However with the increased understanding of the importance of interdisciplinarity in the twenty first century there is a need to extend this campaign beyond literary studies in order to recognise the role of women writers across the nineteenth century a time that was intrinsically interdisciplinary in approach to scholarly writing and public intellectual engagement

From a Photograph Geoffrey Belknap, 2020-08-13 Throughout its early history photography's authenticity was contested and challenged how true a representation of reality can a photograph provide Does the reproduction of a photograph affect its value as authentic or not From a Photograph examines these questions in the light of the early scientific periodical press exploring how the perceived veracity of a photograph its use as scientific evidence and the technologies developed for printing it were intimately connected Before photomechanical printing processes became widely used in the 1890s scientific periodicals were unable to reproduce photographs and instead included these photographic images as engravings with the label from a photograph Consequently every image was mediated by a human interlocutor introducing the potential for error and misinterpretation Rather than reading photographs in the context of where or how they were taken this book emphasises the importance of understanding how photographs are reproduced It explores and compares the value of photography as authentic proof in both popular and scientific publications during this period of significant technological developments and a growing readership Three case studies investigate different uses of photography in print using pigeons to transport microphotographs during the Franco Prussian War the debate surrounding the development of instantaneous photography and finally the photographs taken of the Transit of Venus in 1874 unseen by the human eye but captured on camera and made accessible to the public through the periodical Addressing a largely overlooked area of photographic history From a Photograph makes an important contribution to this interdisciplinary research and will be of interest to historians of photography print culture and science
