D. Gordon,2015-07-14 Excerpt from Quiet Talks on Service The Beginning of an Endless Friendship About a quarter of four one afternoon three young men were standing together on a road leading down to a swift running river It was an old road beaten down hard by thousands of feet through hundreds of years It led down to the river and then along its bank through a village scatteringly nestled by the fords of the river The young men were intently absorbed in conversation One of them was a man to attract attention anywhere He was clearly the leader of the three His clothing was very plain even to severeness His face was spare suggesting a diet as severely plain as his garments The abundance of dark hair on head and face brought out sharply the spare thoughtful earnest look of his face His eyes glowed like coals of living fire beneath the thick bushy eyebrows About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
