A FLEETING MOMENT (Fictional Stories) Fahim Akhter, 2025-10-17 Fahim Akhter may or may not be like the common fiction writers of today He is in the sense that he has written about the world around him and its problems No because there is a bit humour a bit sadness and a little sense of beauty present in his fiction This attribute is not usually seen in common fiction writers In some of his fictions for example Doorbell the ending is somewhat surprising and humorous In Beauty Parlour satirical humour dominates the rest of the elements But still this aspect is interesting that the main character apart from its dotage has the quality of getting into everything like a useless old man If it is called an attribute In Circle Line there is a subtle romantic aspect on which the unexpected tragedy of modern life has also been beautifully painted Like many non resident Indian writers Fahim Akhter has not made only the problems of non resident Indians his subject He can also deal directly with the issues of human life In some places sentimentality prevails e g Devadasi and in some places the human aspect becomes more prominent I congratulate Fahim Akhter for his successful collection Shamsur Rahman Faruqui An Indian Urdu language poet author critic and theorist

A Reader's Companion to the Short Story in English
Erin Fallon, Rick Feddersen, James Kurtzleben, Maurice A. Lee, Susan Rochette-Crawley, 2000-12-30 While the short story has existed in various forms for centuries it has particularly flourished during the last hundred years and especially in recent decades Though many outstanding novels have been written in the 20th century most of these writers have also published short fiction And in many cases their short stories exhibit a greater degree of coherence and integrity than their longer works The rise of creative writing programs in the 1960s helped fuel the growth of the short story and brought academic attention to it So too the emergence of multiculturalism encouraged authors of diverse backgrounds to write about their cultures This reference is a guide to the contemporary English language short story Included are alphabetically arranged entries for roughly 50 English language short story writers from around the world such as Chinua Achebe John Barth Jamaica Kincaid Salman Rushdie and Amy Tan More than half the American writers profiled are from historically marginalized groups such as Jewish Americans African Americans and Asian Americans Most of these authors have been active since 1960 and they reflect a wide range of experiences and perspectives in their works Each entry is written by an expert contributor and includes biographical material a brief review of existing criticism a lengthier analysis of specific works and a selected bibliography of primary and secondary sources The volume begins with a detailed introduction to the short story genre and concludes with an annotated bibliography of major works on short story theory
