Russell,Loring G. Robbins,2022-04-19 As recently as 1968 computer scientists were uncertain how best to interconnect even two computers The notion that within a few decades the challenge would be how to interconnect millions of computers around the globe was too far fetched to contemplate Yet by 1988 that is precisely what was happening The products and devices developed in the intervening years such as modems multiplexers local area networks and routers became the linchpins of the global digital society How did such revolutionary innovation occur This book tells the story of the entrepreneurs who were able to harness and join two factors the energy of computer science researchers supported by governments and universities and the tremendous commercial demand for Internetworking computers The centerpiece of this history comes from unpublished interviews from the late 1980s with over 80 computing industry pioneers including Paul Baran J C R Licklider Vint Cerf Robert Kahn Larry Roberts and Robert Metcalfe These individuals give us unique insights into the creation of multi billion dollar markets for computer communications equipment and they reveal how entrepreneurs with that request in 1976 it marked the start of an improbable career as a virus hunter A cheap thermos flask containing blood samples from a deceased Belgian missionary in Za re put him on the trail of a humdinger of a virus Ebola In the autumn of 1976 he left for Africa with an international team to track down the deadly virus With the recent devastating outbreak in West Africa van der Groen meets his old enemy and mistress again after forty years On the Trail of Ebola tells the exciting life story of a celebrated researcher and the dangerous viruses that lurk everywhere It s a story of brilliant science in sometimes abominable circumstances of lurching between misery and hope between fierce criticism and disarming humour A unique document for anyone wishing to gain insight into viruses and the mass hysteria they can cause
