Searches of literature revealed only three manuscripts on antibiotic abuse, suggesting that the topic is virtually unexplored. One of these, by Smith, Smith, and Shuman (1980), reported that 10% of the general adult population in the United States had used antibiotics without a prescription. The authors noted that the use of antibiotics without a prescription was more likely to occur in the case of children, the elderly, and those with chronic illness.

Abstract. The authors have studied the influence of the concentration of the solution of the monomer on the rate of polymerization of the monomer in the presence of a catalyst. The results show that the rate of polymerization increases with the concentration of the monomer solution. The authors also studied the influence of the concentration of the catalyst on the rate of polymerization. The results show that the rate of polymerization increases with the concentration of the catalyst. The authors also studied the influence of the temperature on the rate of polymerization. The results show that the rate of polymerization increases with the temperature.
