Elephant Baby

Elephants are very smart, but a baby elephant has to learn how to use her trunk. When a baby elephant is born, she uses her trunk to help her new calf stand up. At first, the baby might trip over her own trunk when she walks. Before long, she can travel with her family. They will teach her how to use her trunk to suck up water and put it in her mouth. She will learn which plants are good to eat and how to grab them with her trunk. Elephant babies roll in the mud to have fun and cool off. They blow dust on themselves to keep off bugs. They like to chase and climb on each other.
