Reading: read the first two sections on genetic variation in peromyscus completely (both) and the following questions. Respond to these prior understanding of the concepts discussed in the lecture.

1. Match each of the following changes in chromosome structure to its definition:

☒ A. Crossing

☐ B. Duplication

☐ C. Inversion

☐ D. Translocation

1a. is fusion of 2 chromosomes by breakage

1b. is piece of chromosome is deleted

1c. is segment of one chromosome is broken up and recombined in different order (inversions, translocations)

1d. is fusion of 2 chromosomes (segment from one moves from one to other)

2. How many genetically different gametes can be produced from a diploid cell with 4 pairs of chromosomes (pairs)? Explain your answer.

Answer: the number of genetically different gametes that can be produced is equal to 2^n where n is total number chromosomes pairs. A diploid cell with 4 pairs chromosomes can produce gametes of 16 genetically different gametes.

3. Although you will learn a mechanism of mutation from your reading, you recognize that some traits are the less frequent in populations. (for example, trait color and eye color). Why may some traits be inherited together?

That trait are inherited together and found on the same chromosome. The traits that are not together are separated by crossing over and recombination. If you have a trait that is not together with some traits will be found on the same chromosome and they are found in the same population. Alleles that are not inherited together.

4. Describe the alignment of chromosomes during prophase I, write the sequence.

During prophase I chromosomes condense and homologous chromosomes align together. This is a synaptonemal complex. It allows the crossing over to occur and results in the genetic recombination.

5. How does recombination lead to chromosomal polymorphism? Describe how types of genetic mutations that can result from recombination.
