New Horizons In Chinese Linguistics Studies In Natural Language And Linguistic Theory:

New Horizons in Chinese Linguistics C-T James Huang, Audrey Li Yen Hui, 2012-12-06 The past decade and a half has witnessed a great deal of renewed interest in the study of Chinese linguistics not only in the traditional areas of philological studies and in theoretically oriented areas of synchronic grammar and language change but also in the cultivation of new frontiers in related areas of the cognitive sciences There is a significant increase in the number of students studying one area or another of the linguistic structure of Chinese in various linguistic programs in the United States Europe Australia and in China Hong Kong Singapore Taiwan and other parts of Asia Several new academic departments devoted to the study of linguistics have been established in Taiwan and Hong Kong in the past few years The increasing research and study activities have also resulted in a number of national and international conferences including the North American Conference on Chinese Linguistics NACCL which has been held annually in the United States the International Symposium on Chinese Languages and Linguistics ISCLL which has had its fourth meeting since it was launched by Academia Sinica in Taiwan in 1990 the International Association of Chinese Linguistics IACL created in Singapore in 1992 and now incorporated in Irvine California which has held its annual meetings at major institutions in Asia Europe and the US

A Reference Grammar of Caijia Shanshan Lü, 2022-10-24 Caijia me 21ni33 o 33 Caijia speech is an endangered language in the Sino-Tibetan family with less than 1000 speakers in Hezhang and Weining counties in northwest in Guizhou Province in Southwest China Its sub classification remains unclear It was almost four decades ago when the Caijia language was officially reported for the first time in 1982 by the Language Team of Bureau of Ethnic Identification in Bijie yet this language has nevertheless remained neither well described nor studied This book a linguistic description of the Xingfa variety of Caijia based on the fieldwork data in Xingfa township of Hezhang county is the first reference grammar of the Caijia language covering its sound system word formation parts of speech and syntactic structures in fifteen chapters Being analytic Caijia presents many common grammatical features attested in East and Southeast Asian languages for example compounds quadrisyllabic idiomatic expressions or elaborate expressions lack of inflection a classifier system a strong relationship between nominalization and relativization pro drop and grammaticalization of verbs Moreover Caijia shares more similarities with Sinitic languages Apart from these common areal features this book will also reveal some special features of Caijia

New Horizons in the Analysis of Control and Raising William D. Davies, Stanley Dubinsky, 2008-07-02 Raising and control have figured in every comprehensive model of syntax for forty years Recent renewed attention to them makes this collection a timely one The contributions representing some of the most exciting recent work address many fundamental research questions What beside the canonical constructions might be subject to raising or control analyses What constructions traditionally treated as raising or control might not actually be so What classes of control must be recognized How do tense agreement or clausal completeness figure in their distribution The chapters address these and other relevant issues and bring new empirical data into focus Grammaticalization - Theory and Data Sylvie Hancil, Ekkehard König, 2014-09-15 Since the 1980s theories and studies of grammaticalization have provided a major source of inspiration for the description and explanation of language change giving rise to many publications and conferences This collection presents original empirical studies that explore various facets of grammaticalization research of both formal and functional orientation The papers of this selection deal with general issues and specific empirical domains such as personal pronouns indefinite pronouns final particles tense and aspect markers comitative markers and coordinating conjunctions The languages covered include English German dialects of Italian Japanese Polish and Walman Papuan The book will be of great interest to linguists working on language change in a wide variety of languages Subject Clitics in the Northern Italian Dialects Cecilia Goria, 2012-11-02 1 0

INTRODUCTION This book provides an encompassing analysis of Subject Clitics SCLs by giving a detailed description of these elements in two varieties of Piedmontese a Northern Italian Dialect Astigiano and Turinese spoken in the areas of Asti and Turin respectively It accounts for the structural position and function of these elements inside the computational system and for their morphological and distributional properties It also provides an empirical and theoretical comparison between Piedmontese SCLs and SCLs in other Northern Italian Dialects NIDs of SCLs types in the NIDs have been regarded as Since the 1980s the majority elements of agreement in that they contribute to the realisation of subject verb agreement by expressing features of the subject similar in a way to verbal inflection Nonetheless SCLs are not to be assimilated to verbal affixes as they exhibit different properties Most distinctively they can be separated from the verb by other clitic elements and in the case of the varieties considered here SCLs are optional in all contexts and may be omitted in coordination A more refined identification of SCLs separates SCLs which encode agreement features from those which do not and are related to pragmatic factors as originally observed by Beninca 1994 with respect to the clitic a in Paduano The different morphological and syntactic properties that characterise SCLs across the NIDs have justified numerous accounts which regard them as head of their own projection Chinese Syntax in a Cross-linguistic Perspective Yen-hui Audrey Li, Andrew

Simpson, Wei-Tien Dylan Tsai, 2015 Chinese Syntax in a Cross linguistic Perspective collects twelve new papers that explore the syntax of Chinese in comparison with other languages The Navajo Sound System J.M. McDonough, 2012-12-06 The

Navajo language is spoken by the Navajo people who live in the Navajo Nation located in Arizona and New Mexico in the southwestern United States The Navajo language belongs to the Southern or Apachean branch of the Athabaskan language family Athabaskan languages are closely related by their shared morphological structure these languages have a productive and extensive inflectional morphology The Northern Athabaskan languages are primarily spoken by people indigenous to the sub arctic stretches of North America Related Apachean languages are the Athabaskan languages of the Southwest Chiricahua Jicarilla White Mountain and Mescalero Apache While many other languages like English have benefited from decades of research on their sound and speech systems instrumental analyses of indigenous languages are relatively rare There is a great deal of work to do before a chapter on the acoustics of Navajo comparable to the standard acoustic description of English can be produced. The kind of detailed phonetic description required for instance to synthesize natural sounding speech or to provide a background for clinical studies in a language is well beyond the scope of a single study but it is necessary to begin this greater work with a fundamental description of the sounds and supra segmental structure of the language. In keeping with this the goal of this project is to provide a baseline description of the phonetic structure of Navajo as it is spoken on the Navajo reservation today to provide a foundation for further work on the language. The

Morphology of Chinese Jerome L. Packard, 2000-08-03 This ground breaking study dispels the common belief that Chinese doesn't have words but instead has characters. Jerome Packard's book provides a comprehensive discussion of the linguistic and cognitive nature of Chinese words. It shows that Chinese far from being morphologically impoverished has a different morphological system because it selects different settings on parameters shared by all languages. The analysis of Chinese word formation therefore enhances our understanding of word universals. Packard describes the intimate relationship between words and their components including how the identities of Chinese morphemes are word driven and offers new insights into the evolution of morphemes based on Chinese data. Models are offered for how Chinese words are stored in the mental lexicon and processed in natural speech showing that much of what native speakers know about words occurs innately in the form of a hard wired specifically linguistic program in the brain. Syntactic Change in Medieval French

Barbara S. Vance, 2012-12-06 1 0 V2 AND NULL SUBJECTS IN THE HISTORY OF FRENCH The prototypical Romance null subject language has certain well known characteristics verbal inflection is rich distinguishing six person number forms subject pronouns are generally emphatic and when there is no need to emphasize the subject the pronoun is not expressed at all. Spanish and Italian for example fit this description rather well. Modern French however provides a striking contrast to these languages it does not allow subjects to be missing and not unexpectedly it has a verbal agreement system with few overt endings and subject pronouns which are not emphatic. One of the goals of the present work is to examine null subjects in two dialects of Romance that fit neither the Italian nor the French model later Old French 12th 13th centuries and Middle French 14th 15th centuries. Old French has null subjects only in contexts where the subject would be postverbal if expressed cf. Foulet 1928 and Middle French has null subjects in a wider range of syntactic contexts but does not freely allow a 1st person of the verb to be null. The work of Vanelli Renzi and Benincà 1985 along with many other works by these authors individually shows that a number of other geographically proximate medieval dialects had similar systems though it appears that there are significant differences in detail among them. Aspectual Inquiries Paula Kempchinsky, Roumyana

Slabakova, 2005-02-14 The study of the linguistic reflexes of aspect has been an active field of research in various sub disciplines of linguistics such as syntax semantics including discourse theory and acquisition studies. However communication and dissemination of results across these various subfields has often been indirect. This volume solves that problem. The different angles brought together here give us a comprehensive picture of the representation of aspect in the mind brain of the speaker The papers in this volume represent the results of a workshop on the syntax semantics and acquisition of aspect held in 2002 whose purpose was to foment active cross disciplinary communication A number of the papers examine the syntactic representation of lexical or situation aspect while others focus on the syntactic interaction of lexical aspect with grammatical aspect and of grammatical aspect and tense Other papers examine the role of aspect in discourse representations while a third group of papers reports on results of empirical studies on the acquisition of aspect in both first and second language acquisition and patterns of loss of morphosyntactic reflexes of aspect in language attrition This volume is of interest to researchers and advanced graduate students in syntax semantics discourse representation and language acquisition particularly those working on tense and aspect
