Longstreth, 2000-08-25 Longstreth explores the early development of two kinds of retail space that have become ubiquitous in the United States in the second half of the twentieth century Richard Longstreth is one of the few historians to focus on ordinary commercial buildings buildings usually associated with commercial builders and real estate developers rather than architects and thus generally overlooked by historians of high architecture Here Longstreth explores the early development of two kinds of retail space that have become ubiquitous in the United States in the second half of the twentieth century One external is devoted to the circulation and parking of automobiles on retail premises Longstreth analyzes the origins of this development in the 1910s and 1920s with the super service station and then the drive in market The other type of space internal was introduced soon thereafter with the single story supermarket The most innovative aspect of the supermarket was how its interior was designed for high volume turnover of a large selection of goods with a minimum of staff assistance Longstreth focuses on Los Angeles the principal center for the development of both kinds of space during the period from the mid 1910s to the early 1940s This richly illustrated study integrates architectural cultural economic and urban factors to describe the evolution of retailing and how it has affected the urban landscape Assembly Bills, Original and Amended California.
