Privilege and Property Ronan Deazley, Martin Kretschmer, Lionel Bently, 2010 What can and can't be copied is a matter of law but also of aesthetics culture and economics The act of copying and the creation and transaction of rights relating to it evokes fundamental notions of communication and censorship of authorship and ownership of privilege and property This volume conceives a new history of copyright law that has its roots in a wide range of norms and practices The essays reach back to the very material world of craftsmanship and mechanical inventions of Renaissance Italy where in 1469 the German master printer Johannes of Speyer obtained a five year exclusive privilege to print in Venice and its dominions Along the intellectual journey that follows we encounter John Milton who in his 1644 Areopagitica speech For the Liberty of Unlicensed Printing accuses the English parliament of having been deceived by the fraud of some old patentees and monopolizers in the trade of bookselling i e the London Stationers Company Later revisionary essays investigate the regulation of the printing press in the North American colonies as a provincial and somewhat crude version of European precedents and how in the revolutionary France of 1789 the subtle balance that the royal decrees had established between the interests of the author the bookseller and the public was shattered by the abolition of the privilege system Contributions also address the specific evolution of rights associated with the visual and performing arts These essays provide essential reading for anybody interested in copyright intellectual history and current public policy choices in intellectual property The volume is a companion to the digital archive Primary Sources on Copyright 1450 1900 funded by the UK Arts and Humanities Research Council AHRC www.copyrighthistory.org
