Risk Brexit Politics Referendum:

Political Risk Condoleezza Rice, Amy B. Zegart, 2018-05-01 From New York Times bestselling author and former U S secretary of state Condoleezza Rice and Stanford University professor Amy B Zegart comes an examination of the rapidly evolving state of political risk and how to navigate it The world is changing fast Political risk the probability that a political action could significantly impact a company s business is affecting more businesses in more ways than ever before A generation ago political risk mostly involved a handful of industries dealing with governments in a few frontier markets Today political risk stems from a widening array of actors including Twitter users local officials activists terrorists hackers and more The very institutions and laws that were supposed to reduce business uncertainty and risk are often having the opposite effect In today s globalized world there are no safe bets POLITICAL RISK investigates and analyzes this evolving landscape what businesses can do to navigate it and what all of us can learn about how to better understand and grapple with these rapidly changing global political dynamics Drawing on lessons from the successes and failures of companies across multiple industries as well as examples from aircraft carrier operations NASA missions and other unusual places POLITICAL RISK offers a first of its kind framework that can be deployed in any organization from startups to Fortune 500 companies Organizations that take a serious systematic approach to political risk management are likely to be surprised less often and recover better Companies that don t get these basics right are more likely to get blindsided

Brexit. Stock Market Reactions and Short-Term Reward of Geographic Business Diversification on British and European Index and Industry Level Christoph Siegele, 2017-10-18 Master s Thesis from the year 2017 in the subject Economics International Economic Relations grade 2.0 University of Innsbruck Banken und Finanzen language English abstract The unexpected result of the Brexit referendum to withdraw from the EU resulted in high levels of political uncertainty which affected financial markets adversely To assess whether the Brexit caused disruptions a structural break test was conducted for stock and forex markets The results suggest that only British stock markets experienced significant disruptions which was although only minor relative to other adverse events in the last decade On forex markets five exchange rate pairs were investigated All conversion rate pairs except the EUR USD pair showed significant responses However again in comparison to other events the severity of the structural break was relatively petite In the aftermath of the Brexit British stock markets developed positive and outperformed many global stock markets implying a positive reaction to Brexit In order to rectify for actual developments it was corrected for exchange rate effects in order to gauge the de facto gains losses of British and European stock markets Therefore the difference in differences approach was applied which indicated that losses for the FTSE 250 ranged between 12.16% and FTSE 100 losses lied between 6.9% The EuroStoxx 600 evinced a similar range of losses of 5.8% Based on the increase of country specific risk it is obvious that international diversified firms should have been less exposed Hence foreign involvement is hypothesised to diminish a firm s stock price reaction related to the Brexit By virtue of an event study the impact of geographic business diversification was assessed on British and European abnormal stock returns on the index and the industry level The results portend to a positive relationship of foreign involvement and stock returns which implies that multinational presence of firms mitigated adverse stock reactions related to political shocks On European index level the findings indicate a reversed relationship of stock returns and multinationality of firms
