Brains as Engines of Association Dale Purves, 2019-04-01 Brains as Engines of Association tackles a fundamental question in neuroscience what is the operating principle of the human brain While a similar question has been asked and answered for virtually every other human organ during the last few centuries how the brain operates has remained a central challenge in biology Based on evidence derived from vision audition speech and music much of it based on the author s own work over the last twenty years Brains as Engines of Association argues that brains operate wholly on the basis of trial and error experience encoded in neural circuitry over evolutionary and individual time This concept of neural function runs counter to current concepts that view the brain as a computing machine and research programs based on the idea that the only way to answer such questions is by reconstructing the connectivity of brains in their entirety This view also implies that the best way to understand the details of brain function is to recapitulate their history using artificial neural networks While this viewpoint has received support in the last few years from work showing that computers can win complex games the brain plays a much more complex game the game of biological survival which Purves concludes is based on trial and error experience Exploring the Landscape of the Mind Stephen S. Clark, 2017-04-19 This book is based on the premise that humankind is first and foremost the outcome of the process of biological evolution Recognition of this is fundamental to our understanding of who we are and how we behave All living things have evolved the physical and mental attributes that promote their prospects for survival they are good at doing the things that enable them to pass on their genes to succeeding generations and we are no exception Of course through the development of culture we have gained some freedom from our biological origins Nevertheless evolution has constructed the foundation upon which culture is built The first part of the book Ourselves Interacting with the World presents an overview of the main capabilities that evolution has endowed us with and that enable us to interact with the environment in advantageous ways This includes our senses which act as windows on the world and also of great importance our emotions and ability to remember Our ability to think is perhaps the crowning achievement of our evolutionary journey and of course we must be able to act in a timely and effective manner The second part of the book Living Together traces the history of how we became social creatures To be truly human we had to be capable of sharing and cooperation We also needed to be able to control our aggressiveness and talent for deception We settled down making the transition from hunter gatherers to urban dwellers and agreed upon values and norms of behavior that enhanced our ability to get along Ultimately we came to see good and bad as a morality of right and wrong further augmenting group cohesiveness In the final part of the book Challenges and Opportunities attention turns to a consideration of the constraints and possibilities that must be considered in looking to the future These realities can be seen to play out in four social arenas the pursuit of fairness the seeking of justice the interplay of political beliefs and good government and ultimately a united society that is at the same time a true community Our quest for these things will be greatly aided by a deep knowledge and appreciation of our evolutionary past and the indelible imprint it has left upon us It may even lead us to that most elusive of all things happiness

Time Distortions in Mind, 2015-07-14 Time Distortions in Mind brings together current research on aspects of temporal processing in clinical populations in the ultimate hope of elucidating the interdependence between perturbations in timing and disturbances in the mind and brain Such research may inform not only typical psychological functioning but may also elucidate the psychological consequences of any pathophysiological differences in temporal processing This collection of current knowledge on temporal processing in clinical populations is an excellent reference for the student and scientist interested in the topic but it also serves as the stepping stone to share ideas and push forward the advancement in understanding how distorted timing can lead to a disturbed brain and mind or vice versa Contributors to this volume Ryan D Ward Billur Avlar Peter D Balsam Deana B Davalos Jamie Oppen Yvonne Delevoye Turrell H I ne Wilquin
