Castles in Medieval Society Charles Coulson,2004 In this challenging new book Charles Coulson overturns many of the traditional assumptions about the nature and purpose of castle building in the middle ages He demolishes the traditional belief that castles were overwhelmingly military in their function showing how this was simply one aspect of a more complicated whole He sets out to recreate the medieval understanding of castles as symbolically fortified places of all kinds from ancient walled post Roman towns and prestigious religious enclaves to transitory campaign forts Going back to the original sources Dr Coulson proposes a new and more subtle understanding of the function and symbolism of castles as well as vivid insights into the lives of the people who inhabited them Fortresses were only occasionally caught up in war but constantly were central to the ordinary life of all classes of the nobility and gentry of widows and heiresses of prelates and clergy of peasantry and townspeople alike Castles in Medieval Society presents and explores this broad social panorama

Calendars of the United States House of Representatives and History of Legislation United States. Congress. House, The Early Norman Castles of the British Isles (Illustrations) Ella S. Armitage,2015-04-03 Example in this ebook The study of earthworks has been one of the most neglected subjects in English arch ology until quite recent years It may even be said that during the first half of the 19th century less attention was paid to earthworks than by our older topographical writers Leland in the reign of Henry VIII never failed to notice the Dikes and Hilles which were Campes of Men of Warre nor the Hilles of Yerth cast up like the Dungeon of sum olde Castelle which he saw in his pilgrimages through England And many of our 17th and 18th century topographers have left us invaluable notices of earthworks which were extant in their time But if we turn over the arch ological journals of some fifty years ago we shall be struck by the paucity of papers on earthworks and especially by the complete ignoring in most cases of those connected with castles The misfortune attending this neglect was that it left the ground open to individual fancy and each observer formed his own theory of the earthworks which he happened to have seen and as often as not stated that theory as a fact We need not be surprised to find Camden doing this as he wrote before the dawn of scientific observation but that such methods should have been carried on until late in the 19th century is little to the credit of English arch ology Mr Clark s work on Medi val Military Architecture published in 1884 which has the merit of being one of the first to pay due attention to castle earthworks counterbalances that merit by enunciating as a fact a mere guess of his own which as we shall afterwards show was absolutely devoid of solid foundation The scientific study of English earthworks may be said to have been begun by General Pitt Rivers in the last quarter of the 19th century but we must not forget that he described himself as a pupil of Canon Greenwell whose careful investigations of British barrows form such an important chapter of prehistoric arch ology General Pitt Rivers applied the lessons he had thus learned to the excavation of camps and dykes and his labours opened a new era in that branch of research By accumulating an immense body of observations and by recording those observations with a minuteness intended to forestall future questions he built up a storehouse of facts which will furnish materials to all future workers in prehistoric antiquities He was too cautious ever to dogmatise and if he arrived at conclusions he was careful to state them merely as suggestions But his work destroyed many favourite antiquarian delusions even some which had been cherished by very learned writers such as Dr Guest s theory of the Belgic ditches of Wiltshire A further important step in the study of earthworks was taken by the late Mr I Chalkley Gould when he founded the Committee for Ancient Earthworks and drew up the classification of earthworks which is now being generally adopted by arch ological writers This classification may be abridged into a promontory or cliff forts b hill forts c rectangular forts d moated hillocks e moated hillocks with courts attached f banks and ditches surrounding homesteads g manorial works h fortified villages To be continue in this ebook
