Rethinking the Contemporary Art School Brad Buckley, John Conomos, 2009 Edited by Brad Buckley John Conomos

New Directions for University Museums Brad King, 2023-12-06 New Directions for University Museums is intended to help university museum leaders to help them plan strategically in the context of the issues and needs of the 2020s by examining trends affecting them and directions in response to those forces. It will lay out a series of potential directions for university museums in the 21st century using examples from the field. Although university museums are similar to other museums in their topic areas art natural history archaeology etc they are a unique category that requires special consideration. Today university museums are grappling with new forces that are affecting their future. University museums still have a dual responsibility to campus and community and they still try to mount exhibitions that are attractive to the communities in which they are embedded. But they are rethinking the nature of service to town and gown in response to larger trends around accessibility. It is no longer enough to try to attract visitors these museums are becoming much more active and outgoing in their outreach to the broader public. They have unparalleled access to academic firepower but university museum research is no longer the sole province of academics intended for publication in scholarly journals. In the 2020s research is being made much more relevant to existential problems of the world. For example some are bridging the gap between academic research and teaching and the most pressing social issues of our time such as climate change the fight against racism and the interface between humans and technology. University museum research is no longer cloistered and these institutions are finding ways to better leverage the new knowledge yielded by collections based research for both the university and for public benefit. Student engagement and education is still important but communication is no longer unidirectional from faculty and museum staff to students. Now student input and co curation is now invited as learning becomes a two way street. Moreover public science communication has become a much more important role for university museums. These are in effect the new directions to which the title refers. The main thesis of the book is therefore that university museums are becoming much more outward facing. They are engaging with the public and with the world at large as never before. In effect they matter more than ever. This is the overarching new direction. Within this general approach there are a number of questions that the book addresses. What are the expectations of university museums in the 21st century from their key stakeholders university administrations faculties and students and the communities in which they are embedded. How are those expectations changing and how are the museums evolving to meet them. How are university museums navigating the minefields of political polarization cancel culture or heightened activism on campus and in society at large. What is the nature of the relationship between the university's research and teaching mission and the university museum. What trends can we identify and how can we help the university museum director navigate those trends. The university donor relationship what can we learn from a study of donor expectations and the dynamics of university donor relationships in contemporary society How is the relationship between the university museum and the broader external community changing How is the university museum contributing to or detracting from the overall relationship between the university and the community What role is the university museum playing in terms of public communication of research especially public science communication This book is for all those who work in benefit from or are interested in university museums In particular it is hoped that the book will help university museum leaders who are embarking on strategic plans understand the common issues that are currently affecting their peers and provide some context and guidance to those leaders as they chart their own paths for the future and to advance larger goals For faculty it will show how the museum can help improve undergraduate teaching and graduate student training via highlights and illustrations of new ways in which faculty departments are cooperating and partnering with their campus museums and from a university administration point of view how the museum can help the university achieve its bigger strategic goals such as helping increase the percentage of successful faculty grant applications

Design School: After Boundaries and Disciplines Paul A. Rodgers, Craig Bremner, 2019-07-15 By examining the contemporary situation of the Design School from a global perspective this book explores how the structure of design learning and teaching research and practice is being transformed by a number of internal external and contextual factors and the implications of these factors for future iterations of the Design School Exploring contemporary design education this book asks whether Design Schools are shaping a new type of designer or if tomorrow s designers will emerge from other professions such as business health care education and computing where design thinking is now regularly applied The book is proposed at a time when governments and markets across the world are reshaping education In a time of rapid and intensive change it looks internationally at the shape of the Design School of the future The book has been developed from a series of summits that explored the future of the contemporary Design School informed by international perspectives from high level invited speakers from design education culture and industry who were asked How can a Design School in the age of the Anthropocene best prepare future designers for this complex world How can the Design School maximize the potential opportunities suggested by this future uncertain world at a time of rapid and intensive change Having changed the planet how should the Design School react to the planet changing us The three summits reflect three significant turns in the contemporary Design School The first focused on the current issues surrounding the Design School from the academic perspective The second summit examined the increasingly intensive relationship between industry and Design Schools The third summit focused on the increasingly close relationship between the Design School and the Cultural Sector The book includes essays from the expanding landscape of the Design School including educational providers the design museum sector the international design festival circuit and influential practitioners engaged in design education The essays in this book provide a valuable comprehensive examination of the future of the Design School and render a unique forecast of its probable trajectory

Art and Design Pedagogy in Higher Education Susan Orr, Alison Shreeve, 2017-08-07 Art and Design Pedagogy in Higher Education provides a contemporary volume that offers a scholarly perspective on tertiary level art and design education Providing a theoretical lens to examine studio education the authors suggest a student centred model of curriculum that supports the development of creativity The text offers readers analytical frameworks with which to challenge assumptions about the art and design curriculum in higher education In this volume Orr and Shreeve critically interrogate the landscape of art and design higher education offering illuminating viewpoints on pedagogy and assessment New scholarship is introduced in three key areas curriculum the nature and purpose of the creative curriculum and the concept of a sticky curriculum that is actively shaped by lecturers technicians and students ambiguity which the authors claim is at the heart of a creative education value asking what and whose ideas practices and approaches are given value and create value within the curriculum These insights from the perspective of a creative university subject area also offer new ways of viewing other disciplines and provide a response to a growing educational interest in cross curricular creativity This book offers a coherent theory of art and design teaching and learning that will be of great interest to those working in and studying higher education practice and policy as well as academics and researchers interested in creative education

Who Runs the Artworld Brad Buckley, John Conomos, 2017-09-01 Who Runs the Artworld Money Power and Ethics examines the economics and mythologies of today's global artworld It unmaskes the complex web of relationships that now exist among high profile curators collectors museum trustees and corporate sponsors and the historic and ongoing complicity between the art and money markets The book examines alternative models being deployed by curators and artists influenced by the 2008 global financial crisis and the international socio political Occupy movement with a particular focus on a renewed activism by artists This activism is coupled with an institutional and social critique led by groups such as Liberate Tate the Precarious Workers Brigade and Strike Debt Who Runs the Artworld Money Power and Ethics brings together a diverse range of thinkers who draw on the disciplines of art theory social sciences and cultural economics and curatorship and the lived experience of artists The contributors to this book are in their respective contexts working at the forefront of these compelling issues

A Companion to Curation Brad Buckley, John Conomos, 2020-01-29 The definitive reference text on curation both inside and outside the museum A Companion to Curation is the first collection of its kind assembling the knowledge and experience of prominent curators artists art historians scholars and theorists in one comprehensive volume Part of the Blackwell Companion series this much needed book provides up to date information and valuable insights on the field of curatorial studies and curation in the visual arts Accessible and engaging chapters cover diverse contemporary methods of curation its origin and history current and emerging approaches within the profession and more This timely publication fills a significant gap in literature on the role of the curator the art and science of curating and the historical arc of the field from the 17th century to the present The Companion explores topics such as global developments in contemporary indigenous art Asian and Chinese art since the 1980s feminist and queer feminist curatorial practices and new curatorial strategies beyond the museum This unique volume Offers readers a wide range of perspectives on curating in both theory and practice Includes coverage of curation outside of the Eurocentric and Anglosphere art worlds Presents clear and comprehensible information valuable for specialists and novices alike Discusses the movements models people and politics of curating Provides guidance on curating in a globalized world Broad in scope and detailed in content A Companion to Curation is an essential text for professionals engaged in varied forms of curation teachers and students of museum studies and readers interested in the workings of the art world museums benefactors and curators

Ecologies of invention Andy Dong, John Conomos, Brad Buckley, 2013-10-09 Are artists designers and musicians inventors Or does the invention originate from scientific discovery alone Ecologies of Invention is the first collection of essays that brings together writers and scholars of international standing from the University of Sydney and beyond to examine assumptions underlying notions of inventiveness The writers explain how inventiveness borne out of aesthetic ambitions is impacting on and changing our culture and society Ecologies of Invention describes the articulation of inventive capacities across disciplines and across multiple scales from personal capacities to the social spatial and network configurations that drive people to produce inventions The book poses new questions for scholars artists architects designers historians engineers scientists lawyers and economists about the nature origins and processes of invention This is a challenging book which confronts traditional thinking around creativity and inventiveness and raises issues that need serious debate Barry Jones AO The Meaning of Sexual Identity in the Twenty-First Century Judith S. Kaufman, 2014-06-12 Something happened in the 1990s a group of people who were perceived as radical and unmentionable were transformed into a group of people who deserved human rights and if you looked close enough were normal just like everybody else John DOCOEmilio 2002 Had a post gay era Ghaziani 2011 begun And if so how might this impact on the meaning of sexual identity and a political movement steeped in identity politics Have the LGBT youth of today been duped into conformity because Re-imagining the Art School Neil Mulholland, 2019-08-22 This book proposes paragogic methods to re imagine the art academy While art schooling was revolutionised in the early 20th century by the Bauhaus the author argues that many art schools are unwittingly recycling the same modernist pedagogical fashions Stagnating in such traditions today s art schools are blind to recent advances in the scholarship of teaching and learning As discipline based education research in art eternally battles the perceived threat of epistemicide transformative educational practices are rapidly overcoming the perennialism of the art school The author develops critical case studies of open source and peer to peer methods for re imagining the art academy para academia and andragogy paralogy This innovative book will be of interest and value to students and scholars of the art school as well as how the art academy can be reimagined and rebuilt
