marquees were heralding his appearance in Anything Can Happen. At his apex in the 1950s Ferrer was in constant demand both in theater and movies. He capitalized on his Oscar with such triumphs as Moulin Rouge and The Caine Mutiny. Not content with merely acting, Ferrer soon became a force behind the camera, acting and directing such critically well received films as The Shrike and The Great Man. Success proved difficult to sustain. In the late 1950s such ambitious theatrical productions as Edwin Booth and Juno were critical and commercial flops while film studios also lost their patience with him. By the mid 1960s Ferrer took whatever roles he could get in films, television or regional theater. In addition, Ferrer had a turbulent personal life. His first marriage to actress Uta Hagen ended in divorce and scandal. His personal and professional relationship with his Othello costar Paul Robeson landed Ferrer before the House Un-American Activities Committee. Ferrer's marriage to actress/dancer Phyllis Hill was marred by his infidelity while his initial wedded bliss with singer Rosemary Clooney eroded as his career began to ebb while hers started to peak. In spite of everything, Ferrer managed to endure and was working practically right up to his death. Ferrer maintained his pride in his Puerto Rican heritage, donating his Oscar to the University of Puerto Rico while championing the work of Latino poets and playwrights. He continuously evolved, striving to remain relevant, stretching his talents including cabaret, operas, musicals, and yes, ballet, and writing the occasional guest column for major newspapers. Ferrer's life is an American success story and a testament to reinvention and resilience.

American Small-Town Fiction, 1940-1960 Nathanael T. Booth, 2019-01-10 In literature and popular culture, small town America is often idealized as distilling the national spirit. Does the myth of the small town conceal deep seated reactionary tendencies or does it contain the basis of a national reimagining? During the period between 1940 and 1960, America underwent a great shift in self-mythologizing that can be charted through representations of small towns. Authors like Henry Bellamann and Grace Metalious continued the tradition of Sherwood Anderson in showing the small town by extension, America itself, profoundly warping the souls of its citizens. Meanwhile, Ray Bradbury, Toshio Mori, and Ross Lockridge Jr. sought to identify the small town's potential for growth away from the shadows cast by World War II toward a more inclusive democratic future. Examined together, these works are key to understanding how mid-20th century America refashioned itself in light of a new postwar order and how the literary small town both obscures and reveals contradictions at the heart of the American experience.

Assault of the Killer B's Jason Paul Collum, 2015-01-27 The women who starred in low budget cult movies created many memorable experiences for those fans of late night flicks such as Saturday Night Frights, Movie Macabre, and Up All Night. Brinke Stevens, who played Linda in The Slumber Party Massacre, recalls, "Suddenly I was riding in limos, flying to foreign countries for film festivals, appearing on dozens of popular talk and entertainment TV shows, and truly feeling like a glamorous movie star." This collection of revealing interviews provides insights into the lives of 20 cult film actresses. They discuss the pros and cons of making these movies and the directions their careers have taken since. Among the films they starred in are Night of the Living Dead, The Slumber Party Massacre, Friday the 13th, A Nightmare on Elm
