Sensory Evaluation Practices Herbert Stone, Joel L. Sidel, 2012-12-02 This Second Edition of Sensory Evaluation Practices provides the background and understanding necessary to make informed decisions about managing a sensory evaluation program designing tests and interpreting and reporting results The authors have been in the sensory management consulting business for more than 20 years and bring their expertise to the enthusiastic and comprehensive revision of this invaluable book Sensory evaluation of a product is the measurement of what is perceived about that product not only in terms of its efficacy but also by the more subtle influences of sight smell taste touch and where applicable sound A key benefit from this exciting and quantitative science is cost reduction in product reformulation due to the ability to evaluate a product's consumer acceptance in the marketplace Reveals changes in the field particularly in the business view of sensory evaluation as a product information source Clarifies the relationships between product specialists experts and sensory panels between sensory and market research and between study of perception and sensory evaluation of products Includes discussion of test requests and their hidden agenda product selection and the relative merits of testing products from different laboratory pilot plant production sources Introduces two new methods of quantitative descriptive analysis and an investigation of the merits of product specific versus global panels Discusses affective testing and the advantages of various methods including testing with children the interaction between sensory and market research the use of employees versus non employees and the effect of the number of judgments on product decisions

Sensory Evaluation Techniques, Fourth Edition Morten C. Meilgaard, B. Thomas Carr, Gail Vance Civile, 2006-12-13 From listing the steps involved in a sensory evaluation project to presenting advanced statistical methods Sensory Evaluation Techniques Fourth Edition covers all phases of sensory evaluation Like its bestselling predecessors this edition continues to detail all sensory tests currently in use to promote the effective employment of these tests and to describe major sensory evaluation practices The expert authors have updated and added many areas in this informative guide New to this edition are expanded chapters on qualitative and quantitative consumer research and the Spectrum™ method of descriptive sensory analysis that now contains full descriptive lexicons for numerous products such as cheese mayonnaise spaghetti sauce white bread cookies and toothpaste Also new in this chapter is a set of revised flavor intensity scales for crispness juiciness and some common aromatics The book now includes an overview of Thurstonian scaling that examines the decision processes employed by assessors during their evaluations of products Another addition is a detailed discussion of data relationship techniques which link data from diverse sources that are collected on the same set of examples With numerous examples and sample tests Sensory Evaluation Techniques Fourth Edition remains an essential resource that illustrates the development of sensory perception testing Sensory Evaluation of Food Harry T. Lawless, Hildegard Heymann, 2010-09-27 The field of sensory science has grown exponentially since the publication of the previous version of this work Fifteen years ago the journal Food Quality and Preference was fairly new Now it holds an eminent position as a venue for research on sensory test methods among many other topics Hundreds of articles relevant to sensory testing have appeared in that and in other journals such as the Journal of Sensory Studies Knowledge of the intricate cellular processes in chemoreception as well as their genetic basis has undergone nothing less than a revolution culminating in the award of the Nobel Prize to Buck and Axel in 2004 for their discovery of the olfactory receptor gene super family Advances in statistical methodology have accelerated as well Sensometrics meetings are now vigorous and well attended annual events Ideas like Thurstonian modeling were not widely embraced 15 years ago but now seem to be part of the everyday thought process of many sensory scientists And yet some things stay the same Sensory testing will always involve human participants Humans are tough measuring instruments to work with They come with varying degrees of acumen training experiences differing genetic equipment sensory capabilities and of course different preferences Human foibles and their associated error variance will continue to place a limitation on sensory tests and actionable results Reducing controlling partitioning and explaining error variance are all at the heart of good test methods and practices Sensory Evaluation Sarah E. Kemp, Tracey

Hollowood, Joanne Hort, 2011-08-26 This book is a practical guide to sensory evaluation methods and techniques in the food cosmetic and household product industries It explains the suitability of different testing methods for different situations and offers step by step instructions on how to perform the various types of tests Covering a broad range of food and non food product applications the book is designed to be used as a practical reference in the testing environment a training manual for new recruits into sensory science and a course book for students undertaking industrial training or academic study Sensory Evaluation of Food Gisela Jellinek, 1985 Sensory Evaluation of Food Hildegard Heymann, Harry T. Lawless, 2013-11-08 The field of sensory evaluation has matured in the last half century to become a recognized discipline in the food and consumer sciences and an important part of the foods and consumer products industries Sensory professionals enjoy widespread recognition for the important services they provide in new product development basic research ingredient and process modification cost reduction quality maintenance and product optimization These services enhance the informational support for management decisions lowering the risk that accompanies the decision making process From the consumers perspective a sensory testing program in a food or consumer products company helps ensure that products reach the market with not only good concepts but also with desirable sensory attributes that meet their expectations Sensory professionals have advanced well beyond the stage when they were simply called on to execute taste tests and to provide statistical summaries of results. They are now frequently asked to participate in the decision process itself to draw reasoned conclusions based on data and to make recommendations. They are also expected to be well versed in an increasingly sophisticated battery of test methods and statistical procedures including multivariate analyses. As always, sensory professionals also need to understand people for people are the measuring instruments that provide the basic sensory data. People are notoriously variable and difficult to calibrate, presenting the sensory specialist with many additional measurement problems that are not present in instrumental methods. PREFACE Basic Sensory Methods for Food

Evaluation Beverley Merle Watts, International Development Research Centre (Canada), 1989 Basic Sensory Methods for Food Evaluation Nonfood Sensory Practices Anne-Marie Pense-Lheritier, Irene Bacle, Julien Delarue, 2021-08-28

Sensory evaluation is applied in very diverse and sometimes unexpected sectors. Nonfood Sensory Practices aims to show how sensory professionals from sectors other than food have embraced sensory evaluation methods for product development and communication of their products' sensory properties. This book is thus intended as a first assessment of what is happening in nonfood sectors. It will open perspectives to those sensory professionals who wish to apply and adapt their expertise in food sensory science to other types of products as well as to those working in nonfood sectors but with lesser background in sensory evaluation. Many nonfood products are intrinsically complex. They can be used in diverse ways, often in strong interaction with context and unlike food, over several hours, days or months. This book shows how sensory professionals have adapted to these specificities, not to mention specific needs in terms of panel management and different ways to deal with consumers, users, customers or even sometimes with patients. First chapters present general methodological principles that will allow readers to fully apprehend the use of sensory practices. Then contributions from many professionals in nonfood sectors will help to realize and promote the potential added value of sensory evaluation to their own field of application. Presents methodological specificities and solutions for the sensory evaluation of non food products. Includes case studies that help readers understand how to adapt food centric sensory methods developed for non food applications. Triggers new ideas and further useful developments for the sensory evaluation of food products and the study of food related consumer behaviors.
