

Study Guide for Graduate Music History Diagnostic Exam
Colorado State University
School of Music, Theatre, and Dance

Note: This study guide is intended for all resident students entering the Master of Music degree programs in music education, conducting, and performance.

Recommended Texts for Review:

Burkholder, Grout, and Palisca – A History of Western Music (7th edition or later)

Burkholder and Palisca – Norton Anthology of Western Music, 3 vols. (5th edition or later)

General Information:

All entering graduate students are required to take a music history diagnostic exam prior to beginning classes their first semester of graduate study. Students may not register for graduate level music history courses until they have achieved a grade of 75% or better on the diagnostic exam or completed remediation.

To remediate a non-passing diagnostic exam grade a student should enroll in and pass undergraduate survey courses MU 334 and/or MU335 (as deemed appropriate from exam results) with a grade of C or better. Please note that these courses do not count toward the M.M. degree. Students who so desire may retake the exam one time before the beginning of their second semester of study (at a time and place determined by the graduate coordinator). However, students should be advised that MU334 and MU335 are offered only once per year and waiting to retake the exam may add significant time to their course of study. Consultation with advisor and/or graduate coordinator is recommended.

Exam Description:

The music history diagnostic exam assesses entering graduate students' knowledge and understanding of

- 1.) Western art music history and literature prior to 1750 and
- 2.) Western art music history and literature from 1750 to present.

Format:

This two-hour exam contains listening identification, score identification, and objective and/or essay question sections designed to test students' knowledge and understanding of all six historical periods, composers, repertoire, forms, genres, terms, and concepts.
