

NATIVE AMERICANS

- The Native Americans are the indigenous people of America. This means that they were the first ones there, or the Natives.
- You may hear them referred to as 'Plains Indians' or 'Red Indians'.
- However, there is something strange about this name... They are not actually Indian!
- They were mislabelled as 'Indians' by Christopher Columbus when he first sailed to North America in 1492, mistakenly thinking he had reached India!
- The original Native Americans came from the plains of North Asia.
- They spread throughout North America after crossing the Bering Strait land bridge during the Prehistoric Era.
- The Native American adapted their lifestyle to the different environments in which they lived.
- Some Native Americans, who lived in fertile woodlands, were farmers growing maize, squash and beans.
- Other Native Americans, who lived in the semi-desert Plateau region, were mainly gatherers of berries, roots, seeds, insects and nuts.

THE GREAT PLAINS

- From the 1800s onwards, most of the Native Americans lived in an area called The Great Plains.
- It is a broad expanse of flat land right in the middle of the United States.
- It is 1968 miles long and 497 miles wide.
- There is a very changeable climate: Very hot and dry in summer, Very cold and snowy in winter, but with strong winds all year!
- There are a few slow moving rivers, and some woodland in a region known as the Black Hills. The majority of the Great Plains is very dry, almost like a desert, and covered in long grass.
- It is home to lots of animals, including Buffalo, Coyote, Antelope, Rabbits, Eagles and Deer.
- There is some wild fruit, berries and root plants. The lack of water restricts the growth of plants, but black chaparral grows in some areas because it does not need much water.
- Horses
 - Mexico began to trade horses with the Native Americans in around 1640. This meant that they could travel easily around the huge Great Plains and hunt the buffalo.
 - In the 18th Century people from Europe started coming to America. They brought with them new diseases like smallpox and measles that the Native Americans were not immune. This was killing lots of them and they needed to get away from the disease.
 - The Great Plains were full of buffalo but empty of other people, which made it attractive to the Native Americans.

THE BUFFALO

- The Great Plains was called the 'Great American Desert'.
- On the Great Plains there were hundreds of thousands of buffalo roaming free... But not a lot else! The buffalo became the main resource for the Native Americans.
