Natural Capital Theory And Practice Of Mapping Ecosystem Services:

Natural Capital Peter Kareiva, 2011-04-07 In 2005 The Millennium Ecosystem Assessment MA provided the first global assessment of the world's ecosystems and ecosystem services. It concluded that recent trends in ecosystem change threatened human wellbeing due to declining ecosystem services. This bleak prophecy has galvanized conservation organizations, ecologists, and economists to work toward rigorous valuations of ecosystem services at a spatial scale and with a resolution that can inform public policy. The editors have assembled the world's leading scientists in the fields of conservation policy analysis and resource economics to provide the most intensive and best technical analyses of ecosystem services to date. A key idea that guides the science is that the modelling and valuation approaches being developed should use data that are readily available around the world. In addition, the book documents a toolbox of ecosystem service mapping, modeling, and valuation models that both The Nature Conservancy and the World Wide Fund for Nature (WWF) are beginning to apply around the world as they transform conservation from a biodiversity-only to a people and ecosystem services agenda. The book addresses land, freshwater, and marine systems at a variety of spatial scales and includes discussion of how to treat both climate change and cultural values when examining tradeoffs among ecosystem services.

Mainstreaming Natural Capital and Ecosystem Services into Development Policy Pushpam Kumar, 2019-09-12 This book highlights the latest advances in the science and practice of using ecosystem services to inform decisions for economic development in the context of the developing countries. The development of the ecosystem services paradigm has enhanced our understanding of natural capital as an indispensable form of capital asset along with produced and human capital. This book addresses what could be the possible pathways to mainstream natural capital assets into development policies and what is currently known about the economic values of ecosystem services A series of innovative tools to help policy makers and planners account for natural capital and ecosystem services in sectoral and macroeconomic policies have been explored and their application at the national and regional scale has been demonstrated Several detailed case studies are presented in which the understanding of ecosystem services values has successfully informed decisions including examples from Chile South Africa Tanzania Trinidad and Tobago Vietnam and the Aral Sea in Central Asia These provide the critically important insights lessons learned and means and mechanisms for policy makers to incentivize protection and discourage degradation of ecosystems and the services they provide Mainstreaming Natural Capital and Ecosystem Services into Development Policy is designed to help decision makers at all levels including governments businesses multilevel development banks and individuals to integrate ecosystems and their services into their decision making

Routledge Handbook of Ecosystem Services Marion Potschin,Roy Haines-Young,Robert Fish,R. Kerry Turner,2016-01-22 The idea that nature provides services to people is one of the most powerful concepts to have emerged over the last two decades It is shaping our understanding of the role that biodiverse ecosystems play in the environment and their benefits for humankind As a result there is a growing interest in operational and methodological issues surrounding ecosystem services amongst environmental managers and many institutions are now developing teaching programmes to equip the next generation with the skills needed to apply the concepts more effectively This handbook provides a comprehensive reference text on ecosystem services integrating natural and social science including economics Collectively the chapters written by the world s leading authorities demonstrate the importance of biodiversity for people policy and practice They also show how the value of ecosystems to society can be expressed in monetary and non monetary terms so that the environment can be better taken into account in decision making The significance of the ecosystem service paradigm is that it helps us redefine and better communicate the relationships between people and nature It is shown how these are essential to resolving challenges such as sustainable development and poverty reduction and the creation of a green economy in developing and developed world contexts

Ecosystem-Based Disaster Risk Reduction and Adaptation in Practice Fabrice G. Renaud,Karen Sudmeier-Rieux,Marisol Estrella,Udo Nehren,2016-08-19 This book is a compilation of recent developments in the field of ecosystem based disaster risk reduction and climate change adaption Eco DRR CCA globally It provides further evidence that ecosystem based approaches make economic sense and showcases how research has progressively filled knowledge gaps about translating this concept into practice It presents a number of methods and tools that illustrate how Eco DRR CCA has been applied for various ecosystems and hazard contexts around the world It also discusses how innovative institutional arrangements and policies are shaping the field of Eco DRR CCA The book is of relevance to scientists practitioners policy makers and students in the field of ecosystem management for disaster risk reduction and climate change adaptation concept suggests that economic valuation studies are already fulfilling a role in raising awareness by demonstrating the loss of nature's goods and services using monetary indicators. In order to have future relevance in capturing value and giving support to policy makers, valuation methods must specifically address resource accounting, priority setting and instrument design. This report provides an overview of economic valuation methods of ecosystem services from watersheds in the Nordic countries. The study was commissioned by the Nordic Council of Ministers and conducted by The Norwegian Institute for Nature Research, The Norwegian Institute of Water Research and Sweco Norge during the period May–November 2011. The study indicates that economic valuation methods can be applied to watershed management in multiple ways. However, policy makers should be wary of one size fits all valuation estimates that appear ready to use across different watershed types and stakeholder interests.

Valuation of Ecosystem Services from Nordic Watersheds David N. Barton,Nordic Council of Ministers,2012-02-29 The emergence of the ecosystem services

Ecosystem Services and River Basin Ecohydrology Luis Chicharro, Felix Müller, Nicola Fohrer, 2015-07-17 This book provides an integrated analysis of the methodologies and main processes occurring at the entire river basin from upstream until the coast by merging the biological and hydrological processes with the social and economic components, thus providing an integrated framework for river basin management integrating the ecohydrology approach with the ecosystem services concept.

Failing Forward Robert Fletcher, 2023-03-14 This book documents a growing global collaboration among states, non-state actors and private sector firms concerned with biodiversity preservation to promote so-called market-based instruments (MBIs) that seek to reconcile environmental preservation and economic development by harnessing preservation itself as the source of conservation finance. It describes how this project has developed over the past several decades, the expanding network of organizations and actors that have come together around its promotion, and how the project has managed to fail forward over time despite a consistent inability to actually achieve its lofty aims.

Environmental Issues of Deep-Sea Mining Rahul Sharma, 2019-05-07 This volume discusses environmental issues associated with deep sea mining with an emphasis on potential impacts, their consequences and the policy perspectives. The book describes the methods and technologies to assess, monitor and mitigate mining impacts on marine environments and also suggests various approaches for environmental management when conducting deep sea mining. The volume brings together information and data for researchers, contractors, mining companies, regulators and NGOs working in the field of deep sea mining. Section 1 highlights the various environmental issues and discusses methods and approaches that can help in developing environmentally sustainable deep sea mining. Section 2 details the results and outcomes of studies related to impact assessment of deep sea mining and proposes methods for monitoring. Section 3 discusses the need and means for developing data standards and their application to deep sea mining. Section 4 discusses the policies, approaches and practices related to deep sea mining, suggests formats for developing environmental impact statements (EIS) and environmental management plans (EMP) and describes national and international regulations for environmental management. Section 5 concludes the text by putting deep sea economic activities into an environmental context and conducting techno economic analyses of deep sea mining and processing
