

Creative Placemaking and Urban Renaissance:

The impact of art spaces in the reconfiguration of Athenian neighborhoods

Styliani (Stella) Bolonaki / NTUA
stbolonaki@mail.ntua.gr

This work outlines the geography of spaces specializing in the visual arts in Athens - museums, galleries, art residences, and artist-run spaces - which have increased in recent years in the Athenian districts, transforming their countenance and demographic geography. These spaces attract investment and capital as well as new residents and tourists, extraordinarily reinforcing the policies of the current Athenian gentrification processes. The revitalization more accurately describes the role visual arts are increasingly called upon to fulfill in the urban spaces of today's Athens.

The work investigates the spaces specializing in visual arts under a critical prism. Considering culture as a subset of a cultural structure embedded in either the field of class relations or the (national) social space (Bourdieu, 1987), the study connects visual arts with the symbolic capital, which is used as a guide in the exploration of the policies of the new urbanism (Ley, 2003). The study maps the art spaces which try to shape Athens as a creative city, highlighting their socioeconomic effects in the Athenian districts. This work is part of the post-doctoral research entitled "Public Art in Athens: Institutional Characteristics and its Involvement with Urban Policies" at the School of Architecture of NTUA.

Drawing from the international bibliography around the connection of visual arts with urban development mechanisms, the current research aspires to contribute to a deeper understanding of the policies of the "creative city" in the case of Athens. The study has created a primary database for the art spaces activated in Athens, the body of which was constructed in 2016 and is constantly updating, highlighting their particular location in the Athenian urban environment, and trying to outline their impact on public space, housing, demography, and overall on the trends of displacement and internal migration as well as the change of land use they cause.

Art spaces in the spatial unity of Municipality of Athens

The study has identified one hundred and fifty-five (155) spaces specializing in the visual arts, which can be distinguished into four main groups: The public art institutions. The private or non-profit art organizations. The commercial galleries and the alternative art spaces, most of them have been established in the last six years.

The mapping of art spaces in Athens shows they have multiplied in the last few years. Apart from Kolonaki, which since the post-war era has been the center of the art market in Athens, the prestige axis of Vasilissis Sofias, and the formerly industrial districts of Psiri, Keramikos, and Metaxourgeio, which since the 1990s have been under a culture-led gentrification process, there is significant clustering of alternative art spaces in the historical center as well as in neighborhoods such as Exarhia, Kipseli, Koukaki, and Votanikos. In the next stage, the study will qualitatively explore the art spaces in Athenian districts, mainly focusing on the tight relationship between the visual arts field and the urban development policies.

Never Been To Me Urban Renaissance:

Whose Urban Renaissance? Libby Porter, Kate Shaw, 2009-01-13 The desire of governments for a renaissance of their cities is a defining feature of contemporary urban policy From Melbourne and Toronto to Johannesburg and Istanbul government policies are successfully attracting investment and middle class populations to their inner areas Regeneration or gentrification as it can often become produces winners and losers There is a substantial literature on the causes and unequal effects of gentrification and on the global and local conditions driving processes of dis and re investment But there is little examination of the actual strategies used to achieve urban regeneration what were their intents did they succeed and if not why not and what were the specific consequences Whose Urban Renaissance asks who benefits from these urban transformations The book contains beautifully written and accessible stories from researchers and activists in 21 cities across Europe North and South America Asia South Africa the Middle East and Australia each exploring a specific case of urban regeneration Some chapters focus on government or market strategies driving the regeneration process and look closely at the effects Others look at the local contingencies that influence the way these strategies work Still others look at instances of opposition and struggle and at policy interventions that were used in some places to ameliorate the inequities of gentrification Working from these stories the editors develop a comparative analysis of regeneration strategies with nuanced assessments of local constraints and counteracting policy responses The concluding chapters provide a critical comparison of existing strategies and open new directions for more equitable policy approaches in the future Whose Urban Renaissance is targeted at students academics planners policy makers and activists The book is unique in its geographical breadth and its constructive policy emphasis offering a succinct critical and timely exploration of urban regeneration strategies throughout the world

Urban Regeneration and Neoliberalism Clare Kinsella, 2020-10-29 This book explores the concept of home in Liverpool over phases of regeneration following the Second World War Using qualitative research in the oral history tradition it explores what the author conceptualises as forward facing regeneration in the period up to the 1980s and neoliberal regeneration interventions that prioritise the past from the 1980s to the present The author examines how the shift towards city centre focused redevelopment and event led initiatives has implications for the way residents make sense of their conceptualisations of home and demonstrates how the shift in regeneration focus discourse and practice away from Liverpool's neighbourhood districts and towards the city centre has produced changes in the ways that residents identify with neighbourhoods and the city centre with prominence being given to the latter

Employing Pierre Bourdieu's concepts of habitus and field as mechanisms for understanding different senses of home and shifts from localised views to globalised views this book will appeal to those with interests in urban sociology regeneration geography sociology home cultures and cities Urban Regeneration, Community Power and the (In)Significance of 'Race' Paul J. Maginn, 2017-11-30 The concepts of community consultation and participation have come to dominate academic and policy debate about urban regeneration partnerships However there has been relatively little discussion about the nature of community power within regeneration partnerships Adopting an ethnographic approach in the study of community participation and power and the significance of race in three ethnically diverse neighbourhoods in London this book highlights that there has been a pluralistic turn in British urban regeneration policy Local communities often portrayed as the least powerful partner within partnerships are shown to use various strategies to influence decision making thus giving rise to a new typology of pluralism pragmatic hyper and paternalistic Furthermore the significance of race and racism within community forums and regeneration partnerships is challenged The playful use of the term In Significance in the title is linked to the argument that although racism exists race does not always matter The Game of Urban Regeneration Francesca Weber-Newth, 2019-07-30 Who wins and who loses in urban regeneration What are the mechanisms at play Francesca Weber Newth looks at two neighbourhoods that are adjacent to large scale regeneration schemes the 2012 Olympic park in London and the Mediaspree waterside development in Berlin By analysing how urban regeneration is experienced on the ground her study counters the notion that Olympic led regeneration is any different from other forms of neoliberal urban development Adopting Pierre Bourdieu's view of the social world as made up of competitive games an analysis of the two neighbourhoods reveals how the concepts of culture and community are strategically employed in the game of urban regeneration to the benefit of some and the detriment of others After the Cosmopolitan? Michael Keith, 2005 In this book Michael Keith argues that both racial divisions and intercultural dialogue can only be understood in the context of the urban cities that gave them birth and considers how race is played out in the world's most eminent cities

The Role of Historic Buildings in Urban Regeneration Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. ODPM: Housing, Planning, Local Government and the Regions Committee, 2004 The Committee's report examines the contribution of historic buildings to urban regeneration the role and effectiveness of public agencies responsible for the built environment the impact of the planning system and listing of historic buildings on urban regeneration the role played by government departments to promote the historic environment and fiscal and legislative reform options The Committee concludes that regenerating historic buildings can reinforce a sense of local community and act as a catalyst for urban regeneration However historic buildings cannot be retained as relics of a bygone age but new uses and sensitive adaptations allowed where the original use is no longer viable The report highlights the shortage of conservation officers and the skills deficit in knowledge of regeneration and funding issues It also call on the DCMS and the ODPM to working more closely together on their cross cutting responsibilities in order to boost the potential contributions made by historic buildings to the local economy The current planning system is also criticised for causing delays and uncertainty with developers being subject to as many as nine different regimes including planning controls listed building consent and conservation area controls

Regeneration, Heritage and Sustainable Communities in Turkey Muge Akkar Ercan,2019-12-10 Over the last three decades historic housing areas have become one of the major concerns in urban regeneration housing renovation and conservation projects Since the late 1990s the notion of community sustainability and sustainable community have become rising issues in the urban regeneration debate Regeneration Heritage and Sustainable Communities in Turkey contributes to this debate by integrating the interplay between regeneration community needs and sustainability in the context of Istanbul Together with the relational multi scalar and contingency planning approaches these vital agents of regeneration provide new possibilities and creative opportunities to successfully deal with the uncertainties and complexities in evolving regeneration spaces The interdisciplinary text reasons that finding the balance between the needs aspirations and concerns of local communities and the conservation of the built environments will lead to more equitable and sustainable solutions to the problems faced in Istanbul s historic quarters

Neoliberalism and Urban Regeneration Roger Green,Keith Popple,2025-08-14 London is a major global city which attracts a massive influx of capital while concentrating power and wealth in the hands of the few Meanwhile many communities suffer housing shortages poverty and dispossession How can its diverse communities fight back against exclusionary regeneration projects This accessible book tells the story of the Voice4Deptford campaign in Southeast London which has taken radical democratic and creative action to resist the destructive influence of neoliberalism at the community level It shows how top down change is challenged and together with case studies from across London offers powerful ways forward for other urban communities globally
