Puer Tea Ancient Caravans And Urban Chic Culture Place And Nature:

Puer Tea Jinghong Zhang, 2013-12-01 Puer tea has been grown for centuries in the Six Great Tea Mountains of Yunnan Province and in imperial China it was a prized commodity traded to Tibet by horse or mule caravan via the so called Tea Horse Road and presented as tribute to the emperor in Beijing In the 1990s as the tea's noble lineage and unique process of aging and fermentation were rediscovered it achieved cult status both in China and internationally The tea became a favorite among urban connoisseurs who analyzed it in language comparable to that used in wine appreciation and paid skyrocketing prices In 2007 however local events and the international economic crisis caused the Puer market to collapse Puer Tea traces the rise climax and crash of this phenomenon With ethnographic attention to the spaces in which Puer tea is harvested processed traded and consumed anthropologist Jinghong Zhang constructs a vivid account of the transformation of a cottage handicraft into a major industry with predictable risks and unexpected consequences Watch the associated videos at <https://archive.org/details/PUERTEADVD1>

The Nature of Whiteness Yuka Suzuki, 2016-12-01 The Nature of Whiteness explores the intertwining of race and nature in postindependence Zimbabwe Nature and environment have played prominent roles in white Zimbabwean identity and when the political tide turned against white farmers after independence nature was the most powerful resource they had at their disposal In the 1970s Mlilo a private conservancy sharing boundaries with Hwange National Park became the first site in Zimbabwe to experiment with wildlife production and by the 1990s wildlife tourism had become one of the most lucrative industries in the country Mlilo attained international notoriety in 2015 as the place where Cecil the Lion was killed by a trophy hunter Yuka Suzuki provides a balanced study of whiteness the conservation of nature and contested belonging in twenty first century southern Africa The Nature of Whiteness is a fascinating account of human animal relations and the interplay among categories of race and nature in this embattled landscape

Andean Waterways Mattias Borg Rasmussen, 2015-07-01 Andean Waterways explores the politics of natural resource use in the Peruvian Andes in the context of climate change and neoliberal expansion It does so through careful ethnographic analysis of the constitution of waterways illustrating how water becomes entangled in a variety of political social and cultural concerns Set in the highland town of Recuay in Ancash the book traces the ways in which water affects political and ecological relations as glaciers recede By looking at the shared waterways of four villages located in the foothills of Cordillera Blanca it addresses pertinent questions concerning water governance and rural lives This case study of water politics will be useful to anthropologists resource managers environmental policy makers and other readers who are interested in the effects of environmental change on rural communities Watch the book trailer <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=voILZkiWNU4>

Organic Sovereignties Guntra A. Aistara, 2018-02-15 This first sustained ethnographic study of organic agriculture outside the United States traces its meanings practices and politics in two nations typically considered worlds apart Latvia and Costa Rica Situated on the frontiers of the European Union and the United States these geopolitically and economically in between places illustrate ways that international treaties have created contradictory pressures for organic farmers Organic farmers in both countries build multispecies networks of biological and social diversity and create spaces of sovereignty within state and suprastate governance bodies Organic associations in Central America and Eastern Europe face parallel challenges in balancing multiple identities as social movements market sectors and NGOs while finding their place in regions and nations reshaped by world events

Timber and Forestry in Qing China Meng Zhang, 2021-06-30 Winner of the 2022 Charles A Weyerhaeuser Book Award for best book on forest and conservation history sponsored by the Forest History Society Honorable Mention for the 2022 ISCLH First Biennial Book Prize sponsored by the International Society for Chinese Law and History Traces the sourcing of logs that fueled early modern urbanization In the Qing period 1644 1912 China's population tripled and the flurry of new development generated unprecedented demand for timber Standard environmental histories have often depicted this as an era of reckless deforestation akin to the resource misuse that devastated European forests at the same time This comprehensive new study shows that the reality was more complex as old growth forests were cut down new economic arrangements emerged to develop renewable timber resources Historian Meng Zhang traces the trade routes that connected population centers of the Lower Yangzi Delta to timber supplies on China's southwestern frontier She documents innovative property rights systems and economic incentives that convinced landowners to invest years in growing trees Delving into rare archives to reconstruct business histories she considers both the formal legal mechanisms and the informal interactions that helped balance economic profit with environmental management Of driving concern were questions of sustainability How to maintain a reliable source of timber across decades and centuries And how to sustain a business network across a thousand miles This carefully constructed study makes a major contribution to Chinese economic and environmental history and to world historical discourses on resource management early modern commercialization and sustainable development

Living with Oil and Coal Dolly Kikon, 2019-04-15 The nineteenth century discovery of oil in the eastern Himalayan foothills together with the establishment of tea plantations and other extractive industries continues to have a profound impact on life in the region In the Indian states of Assam and Nagaland everyday militarization violence and the scramble for natural resources regulate the lives of Naga Ahom and Adivasi people as well as migrants from elsewhere in the region as they struggle to find peace and work Anthropologist Dolly Kikon uses in depth ethnographic accounts to address the complexity of Northeast India a region between Southeast Asia and China where boundaries and borders are made disputed and maintained Bringing a fresh and exciting direction to borderland studies she explores the social bonds established through practices of resource extraction and the tensions these relations generate focusing on peoples love for the landscape and for the state as well as for family friends and neighbors Living with Oil and Coal illuminates questions of citizenship social justice and environmental politics that are shared by communities worldwide

Conjuring Property Jeremy M. Campbell, 2015-12-01 Winner of the 2017 James M Blaut Award from the Cultural and Political Ecology Specialty Group of the Association of American Geographers Honorable Mention for the 2016 Book Prize from the Association for Political and Legal Anthropology Since the 1960s when Brazil first encouraged large scale Amazonian colonization violence and confusion have often accompanied national policies concerning land reform corporate colonization indigenous land rights environmental protection and private homesteading Conjuring Property shows how in a region that many perceive to be stateless colonists from highly capitalized ranchers to landless workers adopt anticipatory stances while they await future governance intervention regarding land tenure For Amazonian colonists property is a dynamic category that becomes salient in the making it is conjured through papers appeals to state officials and the manipulation of landscapes and memories of occupation This timely study will be of interest to development studies scholars and practitioners conservation ecologists geographers and anthropologists Forests Are Gold Pamela D.

McElwee,2016-04-01 Forests Are Gold examines the management of Vietnam s forests in the tumultuous twentieth century from French colonialism to the recent transition to market oriented economics as the country united prospered and transformed people and landscapes Forest policy has rarely been about ecology or conservation for nature s sake but about managing citizens and society a process Pamela McElwee terms environmental rule Untangling and understanding these practices and networks of rule illuminates not just thorny issues of environmental change but also the birth of Vietnam itself

Mountains of Blame Will Smith,2020-12-31 Explores the unsettling phenomenon of indigenous self blame for climate change Swidden agriculture has long been considered the primary cause of deforestation throughout Southeast Asia and the Philippine government has used this belief to exclude the indigenous people of Palawan Island from their ancestral lands and to force them to abandon traditional modes of land use After adopting ostensibly modern and ecologically sustainable livelihoods the Pala wan people have experienced drought and uncertain weather patterns which they have blamed on their own failure to observe traditional social norms that are believed to regulate climate norms that like swidden agriculture have been outlawed by the state In this ethnographic case study Will Smith asks how those who have contributed least to greenhouse gas emissions and environmental degradation have come to position themselves as culpable for the devastating impacts of climate change examining their statements about changing weather processes of dispossession and experiences of climate driven hunger By engaging both forest policy and local realities he suggests that reckoning with these complexities requires reevaluating and questioning key wisdoms in global climate change policy What is indigenous knowledge and who should it serve Who is to blame for the vulnerability of the rural poor What and who belongs in tropical forests The Snow Leopard and the Goat Shafqat Hussain,2020-01-10 Who should bear the cost of protecting charismatic wildlife Following the downgrading of the snow leopard s status from endangered to vulnerable by the International Union for Conservation of Nature in 2017 debate has renewed about the actual number of snow leopards in the wild and the most effective strategies for coexisting with these enigmatic animals Evidence from Pakistan and other countries in the snow leopard s home range shows that they rely heavily on human society domestic livestock accounts for as much as 70 percent of their diet Maintaining that the snow leopard is a wild animal conservation NGOs and state agencies have enacted laws that punish farmers for attacking these predators while avoiding engaging with efforts to mitigate the harms suffered by farmers whose herds are reduced by snow leopards This ethnography examines the uneven distribution of costs and benefits involved in snow leopard conservation and shows that for the conservation of nature to be successful the vision interests and priorities of those most affected by conservation policies in this case local farmers must be addressed A case history of Project Snow Leopard in the mountains of northern Pakistan which inspired similar programs in India Bhutan Nepal Mongolia Afghanistan and Tajikistan describes how the animal s food habits are studied how elusive individuals are counted and how a novel kind of snow leopard insurance has protected the species by compensating farmers for livestock losses The Snow Leopard and the Goat demonstrates that characterizing this conflict as one between humans farmers and wildlife snow leopards is misleading as the real conflict is between two human groups farmers and conservationists who see the snow leopard differently
