Making Sense of Data and Information

Elearn,2013-06-17 Managers need to be able to make sense of data and to use it selectively to answer key questions Why has quality fallen in the last week Should we subcontract or employ more people What will consumer demand be in the future They need to be able to assess the value of data and to detect what is and what isn't spin The focus is on analysing numbers On their own figures tell us very little To become meaningful they need to be processed and analysed and it is the patterns that emerge from this that provide the information that is needed for decision making The book is arranged in four themes It starts by considering the value of information in organisations and by assessing how effectively the information is used in a management role It then goes on to look at different options for presenting figures so that trends become clearer and patterns simpler to spot As well as making data easier to interpret the techniques the book presents are valuable communication tools that will help the reader use information more effectively with others The last two themes then provide a toolkit of techniques that you can use to investigate situations and help solve problems These include statistical and operational techniques as well as computer tools Like any toolkit the key to using it properly lies in knowing not only what each tool does but when to use it This book will help the reader to develop this ability by applying the methods that are described within a business context A Curriculum Activities Guide to Water Pollution and Environmental Studies Tilton

Mintzes,Emily M. Walter,2020-02-23 This book explores evidence based practice in college science teaching It is grounded in disciplinary education research by practicing scientists who have chosen to take Wieman's 2014 challenge seriously and to investigate claims about the efficacy of alternative strategies in college science teaching In editing this book we have chosen to showcase outstanding cases of exemplary practice supported by solid evidence and to include practitioners who offer models of teaching and learning that meet the high standards of the scientific disciplines Our intention is to let these distinguished scientists speak for themselves and to offer authentic guidance to those who seek models of excellence Our primary audience consists of the thousands of dedicated faculty and graduate students who teach undergraduate science at community and technical colleges 4 year liberal arts institutions comprehensive regional campuses and flagship research universities In keeping with Wieman's challenge our primary focus has been on identifying classroom practices that encourage and support meaningful learning and conceptual understanding in the natural sciences The content is structured as follows after an Introduction based on Constructivist Learning Theory Section I the practices we explore are Eliciting Ideas and Encouraging Reflection Section II Using Clickers to Engage Students Section III Supporting Peer Interaction through Small Group Activities Section IV Restructuring Curriculum and Instruction Section V Rethinking the Physical Environment Section VI Enhancing Understanding with Technology Section VII and Assessing Understanding Section VIII The book's final section IX is devoted to Professional Issues facing college and university faculty who choose to adopt active learning in their courses The common feature underlying all of the strategies described in this book is their emphasis on actively engaging students who seek to make sense of natural objects and events Many of the strategies we highlight emerge from a constructivist view of learning that has gained widespread acceptance in recent years In this view learners make sense of the world by forging connections between new ideas and those that are part of their existing knowledge base For most students that knowledge base is riddled with a host of naïve notions misconceptions and alternative conceptions they have acquired throughout their lives To a considerable extent the job of the teacher is to coax out these ideas to help students understand how their ideas differ from the scientifically accepted view to assist as students restructure and reconcile their newly acquired knowledge and to provide opportunities for students to evaluate what they have learned and apply it in novel circumstances Clearly this prescription demands far more than most college and university scientists have been prepared for
