Joshua Zeunert, Tim Waterman

Public Produce The New Urban Agriculture:

Public Produce Darrin Nordahl, 2009-09-23 Public Produce makes a uniquely contemporary case not for central government intervention but for local government involvement in shaping food policy In what Darrin Nordahl calls municipal agriculture elected officials municipal planners local policymakers and public space designers are turning to the abundance of land under public control parks plazas streets city squares parking lots as well as the grounds around libraries schools government offices and even jails to grow food Public agencies at one time were at best indifferent about or at worst dismissive of food production in the city Today public officials recognize that food insecurity is affecting everyone not just the inner city poor and that policies seeking to restructure the production and distribution of food to the tens of millions of people living in cities have immediate benefits to community wide health and prosperity This book profiles urban food growing efforts illustrating that there is both a need and a desire to supplement our existing food production methods outside the city with opportunities inside the city Each of these efforts works in concert to make fresh produce more available to the public But each does more too reinforcing a sense of place and building community nourishing the needy and providing economic assistance to entrepreneurs promoting food literacy and good health and allowing for serendipitous sustenance There is much to be gained Nordahl writes in adding a bit of agrarianism into our urbanism The CQ Press Guide to Urban Politics and Policy in the United States Christine Kelleher Palus, Richardson Dilworth, 2016-02-11 The CQ Press Guide to Urban Politics and Policy in the United States will bring the CQ Press reference guide approach to topics in urban politics and policy in the United States If the old adage that all politics is local is even partially true then cities are important centers for political activity and for the delivery of public goods and services U S cities are diverse in terms of their political and economic development demographic makeup governance structures and public policies Yet there are some durable patterns across American cities too Despite differences in governance and or geographic size most cities face similar challenges in the management of public finances the administration of public safety and education And all U S cities have a similar legal status within the federal system This reference guide will help students understand how American cities from old to new have developed over time Part I how the various city governance structures allocate power across city officials and agencies Part II how civic and social forces interact with the organs of city government and organize to win control over these organs and or their policy outputs Part III and what patterns of public goods and services cities produce for their residents Part IV The thematic and narrative structure allows students to dip into a topic in urban politics for deeper historical and comparative context than would be possible in either an A to Z encyclopedia entry or in an urban studies course text FEATURES Approximately 40 chapters organized in major thematic parts in one volume available in both print and electronic formats Front matter includes an Introduction by the Editors along with biographical backgrounds about the Editors and the Contributing Authors Back matter includes a compilation of relevant topical data or tabular presentation of major historical developments population growth size of city budgets etc or historical figures e.g. mayors a bibliographic essay and a detailed index Sidebars are provided throughout and chapters conclude with References Further Readings and Cross References to related chapters as links in the e version This Guide is a valuable reference on the topics in urban politics and policy in the United States The thematic and narrative structure allows researchers to dip into a topic in urban politics for a deeper historical and comparative context than would be possible in either an A to Z encyclopedia entry or in an urban studies course text

Informal Urban Agriculture Michael Hardman, Peter J. Larkham, 2014-10-01 The book explores how unused and under used urban spaces from grass verges roundabouts green spaces have been made more visually interesting and more productive by informal and usually illegal groups known as guerrilla gardeners The book focuses on groups in the English Midlands but the work is set in a broad international context and reveals how and why they undertake this illegal activity Guerrilla gardening is usually viewed uncritically and promoted as a worthwhile activity this study provides a more balanced evaluation and focuses on its contribution in terms of local food production

Resourcing an Agroecological Urbanism Chiara Tornaghi, Michiel Dehaene, 2021-03-07 Foregrounding an innovative and radical perspective on food planning this book makes the case for an agroecological urbanism in which food is a key component in the reinvention of new and just social arrangements and ecological practices Building on state of the art and participatory research on farming urbanism food policy and advocacy in the field of food system transformation this book changes the way food planning has been conceptualised to date and invites the reader to fully embrace the transformative potential of an agroecological perspective Bringing in dialogue from both the rural and urban the producer and consumer this book challenges conventional approaches that see them as separate spheres whose problems can only be solved by a reconnection Instead it argues for moving away from a food in the city approach towards an urbanism perspective in which the economic and spatial processes that currently drive urbanisation will be unpacked and dissected and new strategies for changing those processes into more equal and just ones are put forward Drawing on the nascent field of urban political agroecology this text brings together i theoretical reconceptualisations of urbanism in relation to food planning and the emergence of new agrarian questions ii critical analysis of experimental methodologies and performing arts for public dialogue reflexivity and food sovereignty research iii experiences of resourceful land management including urban land use and land tenure change and iv theoretical and practical exploration of post capitalist economics that bring consumers and producers together to make the case for an agroecological urbanism Aimed at advanced students and academics in agroecology sustainable food planning urban geography urban planning and critical food studies this book will also be of interest to professionals and activists working with food systems in both the Global North and the Global South

Routledge Handbook of Landscape and Food Joshua Zeunert, Tim Waterman, 2018-02-02 Since the turn of the millennium there has been a burgeoning interest in and literature of both landscape studies and food studies Landscape describes places as relationships and processes Landscapes create people's identities and guide their actions and their preferences while at the same time are shaped by the actions and forces of people Food as currency medium and sustenance is a fundamental part of those landscape relationships This volume brings together over fifty contributors from around the world in forty profoundly interdisciplinary chapters Chapter authors represent an astonishing range of disciplines from agronomy anthropology archaeology conservation countryside management cultural studies ecology ethics geography heritage studies landscape architecture landscape management and planning literature urban design and architecture Both food studies and landscape studies defy comprehension from the perspective of a single discipline and thus such a range is both necessary and enriching The Routledge Handbook of Landscape and Food is intended as a first port of call for scholars and researchers seeking to undertake new work at the many intersections of landscape and food Each chapter provides an authoritative overview a broad range of pertinent readings and references and seeks to identify areas where new research is needed though these may also be identified in the many fertile areas in which subjects and chapters overlap within the book
