Rural Wage Employment in Developing Countries Carlos Oya, Nicola Pontara, 2015-05-22 There is a striking scarcity of work conducted on rural labour markets in the developing world particularly in Africa This book aims to fill this gap by bringing together a group of contributors who boast substantial field experience researching rural wage employment in various developing countries It provides critical perspectives on mainstream approaches to rural agrarian development and analysis of agrarian change and rural transformations from a long term perspective This book challenges the notion that rural areas in low and middle income countries are dominated by self employment It purports that this conventional view is largely due to the application of conceptual frameworks and statistical conventions that are ill equipped to capture labour market participation The contributions in this book offer a variety of methodological lessons for the study of rural labour markets focusing in particular on the use of mixed methods in micro level field research and more emphasis on capturing occupation multiplicity The emphasis on context history and specific configurations of power relations affecting rural labour market outcomes are key and reoccurring features of this book This analysis will help readers think about policy options to improve the quantity and quality of rural wage employment their impact on the poorest rural people and their political feasibility in each context

Public Policy and Agricultural Development Ha-Joon Chang, 2012-06-12 This book critically re examines the currently dominant paradigm of agricultural development policy from historical and comparative perspectives Examining the experiences of 11 developed countries in their earlier stages of development and the experiences of 10 developing and transition economies in the last half a century the book offers an in depth discussion on a range of public policies for agriculture some currently in use and others forgotten in the mist of history After presenting the overarching theoretical framework and a synthesis of findings over the 21 countries examined the book presents six detailed case studies of agricultural policy in the last half a century in two Latin American countries Chile and Mexico two African countries Ethiopia and Ghana and two Asian countries India and Vietnam Each chapter examines a wide range of policies including land policy land tenure reform and land quality improvement knowledge policy research extension education and information credit policy specialized banks and agricultural credit co operatives physical inputs policy irrigation transport electricity and divisible inputs such as fertilizers seeds and farm machinery policies intended to increase farm income stability price stabilization measures insurances and trade protection and policies intended to improve agricultural marketing and processing Through its historical and comparative approaches the book frees our policy imagination by showing that the range of policies and institutions that have produced positive outcomes for agricultural development has been much wider than any particular ideological position be it the pre 1980s statist one or the pro market NCW would admit It also shows that the willingness to experiment with new policies and institutions and the willingness to learn from other countries successes and improve upon their solutions were important in all agricultural success stories

Rural Development and the Construction of New Markets Paul Hebinck, Sergio Schneider, Jan Douwe van der Ploeg, 2014-09-15 This book focuses on empirical experiences related to market development and specifically new markets with structurally different characteristics than mainstream markets Europe Brazil China and the rather robust and complex African experiences are covered to provide a rich multidisciplinary and multi level analysis of the dynamics of newly emerging markets Rural Development and the Construction of New Markets analyses newly constructed markets as nested markets Although they are specific market segments that are nested in the wider commodity markets for food they have a different nature different dynamics a different redistribution of value added different prices and different relations between producers and consumers Nested markets embody distinction viz a viz the general markets in which they are embedded A key aspect of nested markets is that these are constructed in and through social struggles which in turn positions this book in relation to classic and new institutional economic analyses of markets These markets emerge as steadily growing parts of the farmer populations are dedicating their time energy and resources to the design and production of new goods and services that differ from conventional agricultural outputs The speed and intensity with which this is taking place and the products and services involved vary considerably across the world In large parts of the South notably Africa farmers are structurally combining farming with other activities By contrast in Europe and large parts of Latin America farmers have taken steps to generate new products and services which exist alongside ongoing agricultural production This book not only discusses the economic rationales and dynamics for these markets but also their likely futures and the threats and opportunities they face

Rural Livelihoods, Regional Economies, and Processes of Change Deborah Sick, 2014-01-10 For centuries new technologies and expanding networks of production and consumption have been changing the face of rural economies in significant ways Millions of rural dwellers have found survival increasingly difficult and have fled to urban centres Others have remained some retrenching struggling to just subsist others attempting to innovatively redefine their place within new rural economies Over the past 30 years rural economies have largely been ignored by policy makers but recent growing concerns about food security environmental degradation climate change continued rural poverty and high rates of out migration have sparked renewed interest in rural regions Covering a range of geographical and socio cultural contexts the case studies in this book draw on actor oriented in depth field studies which provide detailed locally focused perspectives on the nature of rural livelihoods today The collection highlights the ways in which rural livelihoods are being redefined the multiple ways in which rural dwellers draw on distinct social cultural and environmental resources to formulate their livelihood strategies and the factors which facilitate or limit their abilities to do so This volume will be of interest to development practitioners and policy makers and scholars working in rural development and economic anthropology The Ecotourism-Extraction Nexus Bram Büscher, Veronica Davidov, 2013-08-15 Ecotourism and natural resource extraction may be seen as contradictory pursuits yet in reality they often take place side by side sometimes even supported by the same institutions Existing academic and policy literatures generally overlook the phenomenon of ecotourism in areas concurrently affected by extraction industries but such a scenario is in fact increasingly common in resource rich developing nations This edited volume conceptualises and empirically analyses the ecotourism extraction nexus within the context of broader rural and livelihood changes in the places where these activities occur The volume s central premise is that these seemingly contradictory activities are empirically and conceptually more alike than often imagined and that they share common ground in ethnographic lived experiences in rural settings and broader political economic structures of power and control The book offers theoretical reflections on why ecotourism and natural resource extraction are systematically decoupled and epistemologically and analytically re links them through ethnographic case studies drawing on research from around the world It should be of interest to students and professionals engaged in the disciplines of geography anthropology and development studies Agriculture, Autonomous Development, and Prospects for Industrialization in Africa Emmanuel Ndhlovu, 2025-03-06 The book investigates the intersection of agriculture and development in Africa and how it impacts rural industrialisation prospects It provides a comprehensive view of the position of agriculture in African socio economic activities and the agricultural sector s potential as the source for continental development and industrialisation prospects Significant research has been done on African development with a focus placed on the problematic role played by slavery colonialism and later by incompetent African leaders who failed to steer development of the type that delivers a progressive sustained and sustainable transformation of lives and societies There is limited focus on the possibility of agriculture being the potential basis of African development and the chance for industrialisation This is a matter of concern considering the dominance of agriculture as a livelihood and income source for many people on the continent In contributing to the debate on development in Africa this book aims to show how agriculture can serve as the basis for African development and industrialisation This will be achieved by i providing a detailed historical description of the position of agriculture in African socio economic activities ii outlining the trajectory of African development with a focus on agriculture innovation and mechanisation iii identifying challenges to the development of African agriculture iv exploring the opportunities for agricultural development in Africa and v providing practical and policy recommendations to improve African agriculture and make it the engine for development and industrialisation Utilising a multidisciplinary approach which combines political economy social policy financial inclusion and empowerment approaches the book also shows how engagement of youth and women digitalisation and the provision of support by public and private actors can jump start agriculture as the engine of African development and industrialisation Taken together with this conscious effort to promote a multi disciplinary discussion the book is valuable reading for students policymakers and activists interested in emerging new directions in African development thinking and research
